That New Baby.
Buying and Selling.
Time to Advertise.
There Were Two Gamblers.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

REPORTERS say the Lindbergh baby's first name will be Charles. The middle name, if any, ought to be Morrow, since it can't be Anne.

Another reporter said:

"The birth of a boy made Lindbergh's biggest dream come true."

The birth of a girl might have made a bigger dream come true.

First, an older sister is a good influence on younger brothers.

Second, girls, not boys, inherit the genius of the father.

But the Lindbergh baby boy will inherit through his mother the talent of his grandfather, Dwight W. Morrow, and that is worth having.

Scientists tell you:

"Acquired characteristics are not inherited."

They are wrong. If acquired characteristics were not inherited, we should all still be cave men.

THE LINDBERGH baby, inheriting flying on both sides, will fly naturally.

GALTON'S studies in heredity prove that girl babies inherit their fathers' powers. And the four-months-old baby girl belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., proves it also. If you lend her one finger, she seizes it and pulls herself straight up in her crib. She gets that from her father's polo right hand. Inheriting the financial ability of the Mellon family, through her mother, she ought to be well equipped.

WHEN prices are high in Wall street, men buy.

When prices are low, men sell.

The late Russell Sage said:

"Everybody has at least one chance in his life to buy Western Union at $50 a share. Don't miss your chance when it comes."

In the next few weeks or months, thousands will have opportunities for good investment that may not come again in their lives. But they will wait patiently until prices have been driven sky high, and THEN they will buy.

THESE ARE dull days, and energetic days for advertising. The turtle ran while the rabbit was asleep, and won. The wise advertiser builds his business while others indulge in a "false economy" nap.

Mr. Davies Lewis, advertising manager of Cadillac Automobile, has framed on his office wall the reply of the champion "hog caller" when asked how he won the competition:

"You must have appeal as well as power in your voice. You must make the hog believe THAT YOU HAVE SOMETHING FOR HIM."

In modern business, you must not only make the hog believe that you have something for him; you must REALLY HAVE something for him.

WORRIED WALL STREET felt better yesterday; the tiresome "rush to sell" was banished by a "rebound in prices."

Even cotton and wheat, depressed in the morning, picked up in the afternoon.

"Business Week" tells of an old gentleman elected county treasurer, then lured into a "no-limit" poker game by two professional gamblers.

They bet $1,000. He retired for a moment, bringing back all the money he had and all the money belonging to the county, and told the gamblers:

"Before you win, you will have to break me and the county too."

The gamblers quit.

Telling that story to newspapermen, Mr. Legge, of the Farm Board, indicated that grain gamblers, selling short against Uncle Sam, might rue it.

ALLAN HOOVER, son of the President, bought a set of union overalls and has gone to work in a New Jersey plant of the American Radiator Company. He wants to "learn the manufacturing business from the bottom."

THE BEST WAY to do that would to get a job as office boy with Mr. Clarence Woolley, top head of the American Radiator Company, and listen to observations made by that gentleman in the course of business. He really does know the business from the bottom up.

You can learn more about a man or a business by paying attention to the head than by spending time on the feet.

THE PRINCE OF WALES, 36 years old yesterday, has ordered himself, as a birthday present, a new airplane, described as "luxurious, with a totally enclosed cabin, making it unnecessary for his Royal Highness to wear a flying kit."

The Prince sets a good example in flying.

And the world likes him. For him, you might rewrite the text to read:

"Seest thou a prince, diligent in his business, he shall stand before men."

MUSSOLINI'S doctrine that the world has talked too much about vague "liberty" and not enough about hard work, and one man power, is spreading in Germany.

In Saxony, Fascism is the second most powerful party in the state.

ACT TO KEEP PINCHOT ON BALLOT

McGovern Attorney Files Petition Pre-Empting Independent Party Title

To insure the appearance of Gifford Pinchot's name on the ballot in the November election, Attorney Ralph H. Frank was to petition the prothonotary of Dauphin County pre-empting the title of Independent State Party. Frank is acting for County Commissioner Charles G. McGovern. Today's action was decided upon at a meeting in McGovern's office last night. McGovern said the action was taken without the knowledge of Pinchot.

Interest in state politics is centered today in Philadelphia where Pinchot is preparing to defend his rights as Republican nominee for governor before the State Supreme Court at a hearing in Pittsburgh, September 29, on petition of Francis Shunk Brown, defeated gubernatorial candidate, to throw out ballots cast in Luzerne County at the primary election.

'NOT WORRIED'—PINCHOT

Pinchot may issue a statement. He said he was not worried about the eventual outcome of the case.

Pinchot carried Luzerne County by a plurality of about 27,000, which gave him the state by about 20,000 over Brown. Sixty-one counties, including Allegheny, were carried by Pinchot, the latter giving him a plurality of 12,368.

Brown is attacking ballots cast in Luzerne County on the allega-

Carol, Helen Present at Son's Test

BUCHAREST, Rumania, June 24.—(AP.)—King Carol and Queen Helen, who have never officially become reconciled, were present today during a three-hour examination of their son, Michael, to determine his fitness to admission to second grade school studies.

Michael answered questions put to him by his father and tutor. Upon the conclusion of the examination both parents embraced him.

CONSIDER QUIZ ON FIREWORKS

BULLETIN.

Director of Public Safety James M. Clark today agreed to grant a permit to sell fireworks to Morrey Petroni, Federal street merchant. Clark acted following charges by Petroni that he was refused a permit unless he "saw" his ward chairman.

Councilmanic investigation of the ward chairman system of distributing fireworks sales permits as political concessions appeared probable today.

And in the meantime, although Andrew Frazier, assistant superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection, still contends some of the permits are distributed by him on the recommendation of ward chairmen, Mayor Charles H. Kline has not expressed a change of his opinion that the charge is "silly."

Market Trading Dull Prices Fluctuate

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP.)—Trading in stocks today was in marked contrast to recent strenuous sessions. Prices fluctuated nervously, alternately selling one to three points above and below the previous close, but the market was dull and the ticker easily kept even. Investment rails showed more stability than the other groups. Atchison, Louisville and Nashville, Norfolk and Western, Union Pacific and Chesapeake and Ohio retained most of their early $2 to $5 advances.

Officer Reinstated by Walsh After Punching Inspector, Whose Kin He Arrested

Patrolman William Dacy jailed, fined and suspended on complaint of Police Inspector James N. Hoey after the officer had arrested Hoey's brother-in-law, Michael Donahue, and punched Hoey in a police station brawl, was reinstated and returned to duty in the South Side by Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh, it was learned today.

Patrolman Dacy, an ex-pugilist and sub-patrolman under Inspector Hoey in the Oakland district, was fined $10 in police court Sunday morning on charges of disorderly conduct preferred by Hoey, following which the officer was suspended pending a police trial board hearings.

FOLLOWS ARRESTS

All this, the officer contends, came as a result of the arrest of Donahoe and Martin O'Toole, of 3502 Frazier street, early Sunday morning. They were acting in a disorderly manner, according to the officer, and when he attempted to quiet them, he says, Donahoe became augumentative.

The two men were taken in custody and upon reaching the Oakland Police Station, Inspector Hoey ordered the release of his brother-in-law. O'Toole was locked up and Patrolman Dacy, after an

BULLETIN.

LONDON, June 24.—(AP.)—Late afternoon messages from the Souther nCross said she had fought her way through fog from 3:15 p. m. until 4:20 p. m. and that soon thereafter the fog disappeared.

St. PIERRE, Miquelon, June 24.—(AP.)—Visibility in this section today was very poor because of a dense fog which was expected to continue into the night. Close watch was being kept for any sign of the arns-Atlantic airplane Southern Cross.

BALDONNEL, Irish Free State, June 24.—(AP.)—As cheerful as crickets, the crew of the famous airplane Southern Cross today was racing across the North Atlantic Ocean with their radio keeping up a spirited stream of messages and their propellers eating up the mileage between Ireland and New York.

At 1:30 p. m., British summer time (8:30 a. m. Pittsburgh time) the tri-motored plane, which already has a triumphant crossing of the Pacific Ocean to its credit, was 800 miles out on its daring voyage and was rapidly approaching the halfway mark on the overwater lap between the coast of Ireland and Cape Race, New Foundland.

SPEED GAINING

The plane had averaged a little more than 88 miles an hour since its departure from Port Marnock at 4:27 a. m. (11:27 p. m. Monday Pittsburgh time) and had increased its speed to 105 miles an hour as her heavy load of gasoline grew lighter.

The four men aboard her, Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, J. W. Stannage, radio operator; M. E. Van Dyk, assistant pilot, and Capt. J. T. Saul, navigator, were in gay spirits as was indicated by their many messages picked up in Baldonnel and London and by ships at sea.

NAME FOR LINDY BABY DEBATED

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., June 24.—An amicable discussion of tremendous importance is taking place in the home here of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow. The question is:

"Shall we name the baby Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., or Charles Morrow Lindbergh?"

The former is reported to be upheld by Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh, who became the mother Sunday of the most famous baby in the world.

The latter, however, was said to have the support of Charles Augustus Lindbergh himself, the Colonel, the flier and the father of the curly-haired, blue-eyed son born (weight seven pounds and three-quarters) on the twenty-

STUDY LYSTER, WATTS APPEAL

Counsel for Walter J. Lyster and Harold P. Watts, former coal and iron police sentenced yesterday to terms in the Allegheny County workhouse for the death of John Borkowski, Tyre miner, were to confer today on whether they would appeal the sentences.

Lyster was given a one-year sentence and Watts a 10-months term by Judge W. M. Parker, of Venango County, before whom they were tried at Franklin, Pa., after being granted a change of venue following acquittal of a murder charge in Allegheny County courts.

While defense attorneys Charles B. Prichard and Edward G. Coll, are deciding on whether to take an appeal, the two men are being held in the Venango County jail.

Court Enjoins Showboat Owners

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker granted an injunction against the Showboat in Federal Court today, prohibiting the sale of liquor on the craft for one year.

The decree was with consent of counsel for both sides and was made with the provision that the boat may be sold and continue to operate under new ownership by posting $1,000 bond against liquor law violations.

Judge Schoonmaker said the case of the government against the boat, which was raided by dry agents last month, was "very doubtful."

BUS, CAR CRASH; 2 SHAKEN UP

Two persons reported being shaken up when a Wilkinsburg bus today ran into the rear of a Wilkinsburg street car in Forbes street, near the Carnegie Library. They are Mrs. John H. Euwer, of 7731 Abbott street, and E. Roessler, of 814 Walnut street, trolley passengers.

Pittsburgh Railways declared that the accident was due to a truck driver, outbound, who was taking the wrong side of the street. Motorman John McGuigan brought the trolley, inbound, to a quick stop. The bus, following, ran into the car. Trolley and bus were little damaged.

2 Held in Pool Raid Forfeit $200 Bail

Joseph Demma, 28, and Charles Dischall, 26, both of 1712 Forbes street, arrested last night when police raided a second floor room at that address and seized "number" books, adding machines and other paraphernalia believed used in a clearing house lottery, failed to appear for a hearing today and each forfeited $100. They were arrested by a squad under Lieut. Thomas Cross.

Grave Dug for Minister, But He Is Not Dead

WEST NEWTON, Pa., June 24.—Arrangements for the funeral and burial here of the Rev. Alexander Laird, of Glassboro, N. J., formerly of the Presbyterian Church at Sutersville, were complete when word came from him by long-distance telephone that he is alive and well.

According to Carl H. Culler, local undertaker, and police, James Laird, 35, Glassboro, World War veteran, and son of Mr. Laird, picked out a casket after saying his father was dead and that the body would be brought here for burial.

A grave was dug in West Newton cemetery and notices were sent out by Blythe Lodge of Masons, for members to attend the funeral.

Meanwhile, William E. Franklin, of Sutersville, a former parishioner, learned that the clergyman was dining out the night he was supposed to have died. The son has disappeared.

HOOVER DENOUNCES VETERANS' BILL AS 'BAD LEGISLATION'

SPEAKS OUT AS HOUSE PONDERS

Voices Doubt That Nation Itself Will Support Act Drafted for Chosen Few

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP.)—While House Republican leaders pondered, President Hoover today called the World War veterans' relief measure "just bad legislation."

The bill, approved 66 to 6 by the Senate yesterday, was being returned to the House, while the President denounced it to newspaper correspondents standing in his office. A caucus of Republican Representatives has been called for tonight at which an effort will be made to offer a substitute measure.

The President declared:

"I do not believe the country will support this bill."

At his usual Tuesday press conference, the President said that the bill passed by the Senate was no more in the interest of the veterans than of the taxpayers.

HELD DISCRIMINATORY

He expressed doubt the country would uphold such legislation describing it as wasteful and discriminatory.

It would affect only 75,000 veterans and is unfair to those who would not be benefited by it, the President continued, also violates the integrity of the government.

Part of the President's remarks follows:

"In this problem, we are dealing with sick and disabled veterans. Except for some marginal cases, the government has long since generously provided for the men whose disabilities arise from the war itself.

"These cases before us, except for a comparatively small number of marginal ones, are in reality men disabled from incidents of civil life since the war.

SELECTS SMALL GROUP

"This bill selects a particular group of 75,000 to 100,000 men, makes provision for them in the most wasteful and discriminatory way conceivable and entirely neglects the equal rights to help of over 200,000 more veterans who are likewise suffering from disabilities incurred in civil life since the war.

"Furthermore, the very basis of the bill sets up an untruthful and, according to our physicians, a physically impossible 'presumption' and predicates its action upon this.

OBVIOUSLY INJUSTICE

"For instance, a man who has served a few days in the Army in his home town or in camps, and afterward enjoyed seven to twelve years of good health, then after all that time incurs any affliction, is thereby declared to have a disability due to the war and is to be compensated or pensioned on the same basis as the man who suffered in the trenches and from actual battle. It contains many other discriminations and injustices.

"These things violate not only the fact but the very integrity of government. It is a sad thing for our government to set standards of subterfuge to our people. It is unfair to all other veterans who have become disabled in civil life.

"It is unfair to the whole spirit of the World War veterans."

ROBBER DODGES POLICE SHOTS

Dodging a score of pistol shots, a Negro purse snatcher eluded police last night in a chase through the Oakland district.

Mrs. P. D. Kuhns and a companion were entering their residence in the Cathedral Mansions, Ellsworth avenue, when the Negro leaped from nearby shrubbery and snatched Mrs. Kuhn's purse containing $11.

Police were notified, and a squad caught a glimpse of the fleeing Negro in Copeland street. The chase was led by Patrolman John Whalen, who fired several shots at close range after the Negro ignored commands to halt.

The thief escaped through a narrow alley between Copeland and Bellefonte streets. Whalen said he believed one of his slugs hit the man.

Samuel Freeman, of 2213 Webster avenue, reported to police this morning that two Negroes had entered his home last midnight and, at the point of a revolver, robbed him of $2. The men ran into the street and escaped, he said.

Relief Work Duplicated, Destitute Family Loses Free Milk

Five children under the age of eight are without milk today because two charitable organizations which had been supplying them found the children were obtaining a quart of milk a day from each of them. Rules provide a family may receive milk from one organization only.

The children's mother is ill, will soon need an operation. Their father, out of work for a year, has recently been earning between $30 and $35 a month at part time day labor.

ORDERS DUPLICATED

It all happened because Mrs. Antonio Panzini, 54 Marion street, found she could not afford to buy milk for Tony, now aged 3. So the Soho Milk Station, 2410 Fifth avenue, came to her aid with free milk from the city.

Eight months ago, Joseph Panzini was born. This time the Pittsburgh Milk and Ice Association contributed a quart a day.

Last week, Mrs. Panzini says, a city nurse was visiting when a milkman delivered some certified milk. Since the city does not give certified milk, questions were asked, duplication discovered.

Now both charitable organizations have cut off the family.

There are two scanty meals a day for Mr. and Mrs. Panzini, for Ralph, 8; John, 7; Mary, 5; Tony and Joseph. This food is contributed by neighbors a little better off, and by stores willing to charge goods until better times come.

WERE "DOUBLE CROSSED"

Dr. H. J. Benz, of the Child Welfare Department, said:

"We found they were breaking our rules and obtaining milk from two sources. They double-crossed us. In that case, we always stop our milk supply. If they don't have any milk, that's their hard luck for tricking us."

Mrs. A. B. Spear, secretary of the Pittsburgh Milk and Ice Association, said today when she that the Soho milk station had stopped the supply of milk to the Panzinis:

"It's a city case and I don't want to go into it at all. I don't feel we should give them milk after the way they have treated us."

Tribute to the work of Supt. W. Frank Penn, who is completing 25 years as head of the institution, was paid by Gen. Martin; Mrs. E. Grace McCauley, of Beaver, secretary of the department of welfare, and W. D. Cotterrel, of Pittsburgh, president of the board of trustees of the institution.

His first appearance in the United States was in San Francisco in 1892 and the following season he became leading man for Julia Marlowe.

During the season, 1894-95, he was with Richard Mansfield, playing with him until 1897 and joining the company which was headed by Fanny Davenport the following year.

In succeeding years he played under the managements of George Tyler and Charles Frohman.

CAPONE SUED BY DOCTOR

MIAMI, Fla., June 24.—(AP.)—A suit for $2,500 damages for a doctor's bill is the latest of "Scarface" Al Capone's legal troubles.

Capone was named in a suit filed by Arthur Friedman, attorney for Dr. Kenneth Phillips, who listed various items of medical service.

Of the amount alleged due, Dr. Phillips' suit said, $135 was for services in 1929 in treating "Costello, Joseph, Coughlin and Boswell whose first names are unknown. During the same period, the suit alleged that the physician attended "the cook's wife, the assistant chef and the mate on the boat."

Two thousand dollars of the bill is for services in attending Dennis Coughlin, Capone's brother-in-law, who suffered severe injuries when his automobile struck a trailer at New Smyrna two months ago.

NO STRADDLING ON DRY LAW, SAYS MORROW

Insists New Jersey Party Platform Carry Repeal Plank; Conference Held

TRENTON, N. J., June 24.—A plank favoring repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment will be carried in the platform of the New Jersey Republican party, it was stated unofficially today following a conference of leading Republicans with Dwight W. Morrow, nominee for the Senate, who scored an overwhelming victory in the primary on his anti-dry stand.

Those attending the conference, which lasted an hour and a half, were Gov. Morgan F. Larson, State Senator Joseph G. Wolber, U. S. Senator Hamilton Kean and Ogden H. Hammond.

COMES AS SURPRISE

The decision came as a surprise, since it had been rumored in reliable sources previously, that the leaders had decided to "straddle" the issue.

It had been forecast that Morrow would not oppose the "straddling" stand, but those who revealed the table talk said Morrow declined to accept any such view.

LAYS DOWN LAW

He laid down the law, one conferee said, and explained that Morrow insisted the platform be drawn to conform with the view he expressed in his Newark campaign speech, when he said:

"I favor repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment."

It was said suggestions for referendums were suggested as compromise measures, but Morrow would have none of anything less emphatic and clear than his own declaration of the prohibition question in his Newark speech.

NEW ENGINEER URGES TRAFFIC BY-PASSES

Prof. McIntyre Considers Parking Ban Plan to Ease Downtown Congestion

Faced with an increase of one-third in the volume of traffic in downtown Pittsburgh since installation of the first traffic lights, not two years ago, Prof. Lewis W. McIntyre entered upon his new duties as the city's traffic engineer today. He said:

"There seems, just now, to be two possible solutions to Pittsburgh's traffic problem. More room must somehow be provided; we must either decrease volume of traffic or increase street space.

"From the present looks of things, by-passes for traffic going across the city and elimination, total or partial, of parking on downtown thoroughfares are the two possible methods of relieving the situation."

CROSSTOWN BY-PASS

One of the by-passes to which McIntyre plans to give immediate attention, with the aid of the Better Traffic Committee, is the proposed crosstown thoroughfare. This lane would provide quick flow for traffic going to and from North Side and South Side, he says, and to and from the east by Bigelow boulevard or the Boulevard of the Allies.

McIntyre stresses the need of by-passes as a result of the recent traffic survey, he says, which showed that 25 per cent of the traffic in the Triangle was of no commercial value to downtown Pittsburgh, being bound for points across the town.

PARKING TO BE STUDIED

The parking problem, he says, is to receive his early attention.

The traffic lighting system which McIntyre helped lay out is, he declares, probably the best in America, considering topographical problems. Corners demanding new attention are those at Liberty avenue and Grant street and the Boulevard of the Allies and Grant street. A large traffic circle at the north end of the Liberty tubes and a circle at the south end are contemplated, he says.

Early appointment by the Mayor of a traffic planner, assistant to McIntyre, at $4,000 a year, and probable election of McIntyre as traffic engineer for the Better Traffic Commission are said to be coming.

BALLOTS GENERALLY USED

Ballots were used in all of Luzerne's County's 372 districts except about 40, where voting machines were installed. The latter results have not been challenged.

Pinchot will appear on the ballot in the November election as the Republican nominee unless the Supreme Court throws out the primary vote of Luzerne County.

If Brown's petition is granted he will become the Republican nominee but about 60,000 voters in Luzerne County will have been disfranchised and the vote of every Pinchot supporter in the state will have been nullified.

The situation is made more acute because of the fact that the Supreme Court hearing will be held about three weeks after the last day on which a candidate can file papers to appear on the ballot under an independent party.

HOLDS SECRECY VOIDS TREATY

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(INS.)—President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson were sharply criticized in the Senate today in a report submitted by Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, declaring the London Naval Treaty had been voided by their action in refusing the Senate Foreign Relations Committee secret correspondence on the pact.

Declaring he opposed committee approval of the document because of the administration policy, Shipstead submitted a comprehensive report declaring the treaty vitiated "both morally and legally."

Shipstead's report was regarded as evidence the controversy between the committee and the administration would be fully aired when the treaty is up for consideration in special session of the Senate. The committee voted 16 to 4 to approve the pact, Shipstead, Senators Johnson (Rep.), of California; Moses (Rep.), of New Hampshire, and Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, opposing.

Johnson will submit the official minority report on the pact, Robinson also is expected to submit a supplemental document in protest of ratification.

Smoot to Ignore Special Session

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(INS.)—Senator Reed Smoot (Rep.), Utah, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which drafted and maneuvered the bulky tariff bill through Congress, told President Hoover today he will not return to the Capitol if an extra session of the Senate is called to ratify the London naval treaty.

He said the long battle over the tariff rates has exhausted him and that he plans to take a rest.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 24.—Amos W. W. Woodcock, named as director of the new Prohibition Bureau in the Department of Justice, said in an interview today that he planned to see that the law is adminisered "fairly, honestly, decently, earnestly, and above all, lawfully."

For eight years federal district attorney in Baltimore, chief city of a state that has no prohibition enforcement law, Mr. Woodcock was questioned about his enforcement plans.

He said he would discharge his duties with "due regard for the Bill of Rights," in the Constitution.

AIDED CRIME BODY

In addition to handling enforcement problems as district attorney, Mr. Woodcock served recently as prohibition adviser to the Wickersham commission.

He said he planned to commute to Washington every day before July 1, when he is to take office. A bachelor, he indicated he would set up a establishment in Washington like that which has served him in Baltimore, spending his weekends at Salisbury, his old home, as at present.

Prohibition Lures Turk, At 156, to Visit U. S.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, June 24.—(AP.)—A Turkish passport stating the owner's birth year is 1774 and stamped with a six months' United States visa will carry toward New York this week Zaro Agha, who believes he is the oldest man in the world.

He has traveled in bygone centuries, having, he declares, fought with Napoleon in Egypt and in Greece during the War of 1825. Now Zaro Agha has selected America for a twentieth century odyssey because, as a fervid Moslem teetotaler, he wants to pay his respects to the land where, as the Koran bids, wine is held wicked, his own country having backslid in this respect.

Zaro says America will be sure to appreciate the man who has been dry for 156 years. He hopes to get into the movies. Of his visit, he says:

"Dozens of Americans have written me to come. A rich American lady who owns eight battleships and four yachts has invited me to visit her. She sent me a dollar. I may decide to marry her."

Russian Atheists' Leader Spurs New 'War on God'

MOSCOW, June 24.—(AP.)—Emelyan Yaroslavsky, head of the Soviet Society of Militant Atheists, has a long article in today's Pravda on the growth of atheism in Russia. He calls on the Communist Congress, opening tomorrow, to give anti-religious workers throughout the country clear, definite instructions for continuation of their "war on God."

While pointing out that the movement has grown enormously, until the society now numbers 3,500,000, against 87,000 three years ago, Yaroslavsky admits religion still is a mighty force and must be attacked from every quarter.

He says that next to the famous Tretyavkoff picture gallery, the Central Anti-Religious Museum in Moscow is most popular institution for visitors in Russia. He urges establishing a model anti-religious museum on a large scale, one which will have world significance.

Characterizing religion as a fortress of reaction, Yaroslavsky bids atheists throughout the country to enlist the services of doctors, lawyers, artists, writers and scientists for a renewed assault on the church. He warns anti-religious workers, however, against repeating the excesses of this spring when attempts were made to proclaim entire districts godless and to close churches on a wholesale scale by administrative measures. He adds:

"Religion still is a powerful citadel and we cannot annihilate it in the twinkling of an eye, as so many of our members believe."

56 SLAIN IN INDIAN PRISON MUTINY OVER SIMON REPORT

71 WOUNDED IN 2-HOUR BATTLE

Frenzieed Horde Snatches Guards' Weapons; Halted At Gates of Rangoon Jail

RANGOON, Burma, India, June 24.—(AP.)—At least 56 persons were killed and 71 wounded during a mutiny in the central jail here this afternoon, after malcontents had denounced the Simon report.

Several hundred prisoners were returning from the workshops to the main hall for their meal when they suddenly rushed the sentries guarding the inner gates.

SEIZE WARDER'S RIFLES

They slaughtered six of the warders and seized their rifles.

The mutineers then fought their way to an outer gate where they were halted by half a dozen determined guards.

The outer guards held several hundred of desperate convicts at bay until arrival of military police who surrounded the prison.

Two hours of hand-to-hand fighting between convicts and military police ensued.

The casualties, as made known soon after the fighting had subsided, included killed two sentries, 11 guards, two military policemen, a truck driver and 40 convicts.

The injured—11 guards, 60 convicts.

STOCK UP AT ARSENAL

After the convicts had seized the weapons of the inner warders, they raided the prison armory, equipping themselves with arms and ammunition.

They then retraced their steps to the workshops.

Taking cover wherever they found it, in the workshops and outside their walls, the convicts kept up the battle with the forces of the law until their ammunition was exhausted. Then they surrendered.

Simon Report Bars Freedom for India

LONDON, June 24.—India's plea for independence or a dominion status in the British empire is denied in the recommendations submitted by the Indian Statutory Commission in its final report introduced in the House of Commons.

The compromise which the recommendations offers, however, would bring about an experimental Indian government built upon a federation of states. The report, over the signature of Sir John Simon, chairman, and his associates, recommends:

1. A federation of Indian states, excluding Burma, which henceforth should be a separate state with separate government.

2. Provincial legislatures for each state.

3. The granting of a legislature to the Northwest frontier province and Baluchistan, which hitherto have not had governing bodies.

4. Bi-rameral central government over the provincial legislatures.

BRITISH CONTROL

5. Continuance of the British governor-generalship.

6. A ministers' council not elected by the people but appointed by the British governor-general.

7. Suffrage for 20 per cent of the population instead of the present 6½ per cent; with the grant extended to wives and widows (over 21 years) of registered voters.

8. The abolition of "dyarchy," under which heretofore there existed certain ministries of which Indian ministers were not permitted to take charge.

9. Strict and loyal government of the Northwest frontier province and Baluchistan to prevent encroachment of Asiatic tribesmen.

CHICAGO, June 24.—(INS.)—The grand jury investigation of the gangland murder of Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, turned today to asserted evidence of collusion between the authorities and gangsters, State's Attorney John A. Swanson disclosed.

Action is being held back in order not to jeopardize solution of the murder itself, Swanson announced. It was revealed that the complete evidence gathered in the Lingle killing will be placed before the July grand jury immediately after it convenes.

Meanwhile the nation-wide search for James "Red" Forsythe, named by police as the actual killer of Lingle, continued. Search is also being made for Simon Gorman, a friend of Forsythe and charactertized as a $350,000 a year racketeer.

FEAR SIX SLAIN BY PIRATES

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—Six of a mystery yacht crew are believed to have met death at the hands of Delaware Bay freebooters following discovery of a battered hulk drifting with the tide.

A huge hole in its side indicates that the yacht may have been run down by a pirate craft and looted. Although without a clue the authorities believe the missing men were murdered and their bodies cast into the bay.

All but 100 cases of choice liquors had been removed from the derelict. Coast Guardsmen from Base No. 9 Cape May, who discovered the hulk, removed liquor valued at $10,000.

Clothing and personal effects found scattered about the floor indicated the boat had been operated by a crew of six.

The craft, a 65-foot speedster named the Daisy T, was partly submerged when sighted on the Delaware side of the bay just below the mouth of the Mispillion River, in Delaware, long a haven for rum-runners.

"We'll probably run away to some small town or wed in an airplane, or perhaps I'll meet Harry in England, where he is going to appear in a revue, and then get married in a London suburb."

"Since I came to New York to see Harry, they have worried me to death. I visited Harry's home at Beechhurst, Long Island, and photographers were hiding in the cellar and climbing trees. One woman reporter kept sending in ss, asking if I had a chaperone.

"I did have a chaperone, Daisy Devoe, my traveling companion. And I was and am sick. My doctor said I had a slight congestion of the lungs and my nerves are shattered.

"I so hoped to be in Washington again this year at the time the 4-H clubs were camping there, that I might be able to attend your dinner and have you all come to see me again and tell me the things your club had accomplished this year and all your plans for next year. But, since I am not to have that pleasure, I must content myself with sending my greetings to those of you whom I met last year and to you new members who have come to camp in Washington for the first time. With the best of good wishes for a joyful and constructive camp and new year's program, I am ditions seemed favorable for a fast hop across the North Atlantic which already has taken so heavy a toll of brave airmen and several women—who sought to make the westward crossing.

FLIERS BATTLE FOG HALF-WAY OVER OCEAN

Dense Haze Awaits Southern Cross Off Newfoundland On Erin-to-U. S. Flight

"CONDITIONS IDEAL"

Undeterred by these tragedies Kingsford-Smith flooded the air with cheerful messages.

"Slightly overcast," said a late message picked up in London. "Ocean like mill pond. Traveling 100 miles an hour. If conditions were like this always, ocean flying would be easy."

It was cold high up there over the Atlantic, but the fliers were dressed for it, and their messages showed no loss of zest for their great adventure.

"Shooting suns and things!" said one message received shortly after 10 o'clock. "Gee! Icy cold outside. I bet Van and Smith are feeling it. We are all wrapped up like polar explorers, but it is still pretty nippy."

Van Dyk and Kingsford-Smith were in the cockpit. The two others were in the cabin.

ON GREAT CIRCLE ROUTE

The Southern Cross left the Irish coast at 9:25 a. m. G. M. T. (4:25 p. m. Pittsburgh time) and then sped westward over the Great Circle course on a line forward Cape Race, the southeasterly tip of Newfoundland. It is approximately 1,800 miles between the coast of Ireland and Newfoundland.

Only once before has this stretch of turbulent water been crossed successfully in a westerly direction—by the monoplane Bremen manned by Col. James Fitzmaurice an Irishman and two Germans, Capt. Herman Koehl and the late Baron von Huenefeld.

Even they fell short of their goal, landing at Greenely Island, a lonely spot on the coast of Labrador, where they remained for days before they could be brought southward.

Kingsford-Smith's most famous previous flight was his trip from Oakland Airport on the coast of California to Wheeler Field, Honolulu, and thence by way of the Fiji Islands to Australia, his native land. That was in June 1928.

The span of the Atlantic between Fastnet, most southern point of Ireland, to Cape Race is 1,700 miles.

The point of latest report indicated that the Southern Cross had maintained an average for the entire distance of slightly more than 88 miles an hour.

FOG POSSIBLE

ST. JOHNS, N. F., June 24.—(AP.)—Unless the weather changes during the day, Maj. Charles Kingsford-Smith and his companions aboard the Southern Cross are likely to encounter dense fog which has enshrouded the southern Newfoundland coast.

A sharp watch will be kept for the aviators who expect to sight Cape Race before shaping their course to the south for New York.

"NORMAL WEATHER"

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP.)—Fog, overcast skies and winds of increasing velocity await Capt. Kingsford-Smith and the Southern Cross off the Newfoundland coast, Dr. James H. Kimball meteorologist of the Weather Bureau said today.

This is the usual weather, Dr. Kimball said, and should offer no great hazard to an experienced flier of Kingsford-Smith's proven ability.

The winds are fresh to strong southwesterly of about 12 miles an hour, apparently similar in strength to the head winds the Southern Cross bucked on the first half of her journey from Ireland.

Only local storm areas were predicted for mid-Atlantic, which would cause little trouble, Dr. Kimball said.

PLAN HOURLY REPORTS

DUBLIN, June 24.—(INS.)—The Southern Cross, flying out over the North Atlantic Ocean on an attempted nonstop flight to New York, planned to send hourly messages by radio. The plane's call letters are VMZAB and the wavelength assigned is 30 meters.

FACE FOG BANKS

LONDON, June 24.—(INS.)—The British Air Ministry today forecasted that the Southern Cross, on its nonstop flight from Ireland to New York, would encounter fair weather on the first half of its flight over the North Atlantic Ocean. The visibility would be good and the winds mainly northwest.

Winds off the Irish coast were moderate and they would become light after the airplane was 500 miles out to sea, the forecast said.

However, it warned there were fog banks near Newfoundland.

ALLOW 35 HOURS

It was estimated the flight would take from 34 to 35 hours, according to the plan to follow the northern Great Circle route, keeping over the shipping channels as far as Cape Race, Newfoundland.

From Cape Race, the Southern Cross was expected to head toward the mainland and cut down the coast of Maine toward New York.

Approximately 1,300 gallons of gasoline had been loaded on the plane.

The fliers carried a large flask of coffee, egg, cheese and tomato sandwiches and half a pound of chocolate. Pneumatic lifebelts were provided for each man and spare wireless parts were on board.

Should the motors fail, Kingsford-Smith said he could dump his fuel tanks and give the plane sufficient buoyancy to float several hours.

PARENTS SEEK 'EAGLET' NAME ON FIREWORKS

fourth birthday of Mrs. Lindbergh.

CAN WAIT FIVE DAYS

It is not necessary that the birth certificate be filed for five days, so the Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh are understood to be in no hurry to arrive at a decision. Ambassador and Mrs. Morrow, it is said are taking no part in this discussion.

The ambassador is going about with a wide grin calling himself "grandfather" at intervals just to hear how it sounds. Joyful in her new-found motherhood, Mrs. Lindbergh is said to be resting comfortably in the sunlit wing of the rambling house which has been turned into an infirmary and nursery. The baby also is reported as doing excellently.

Reporters still wait in front of the Morrow home. The ambassador's secretary, however, said no more announcements about the baby would be given out, but the news men remain at their posts, accompanied by a crowd of photographers, movie and sound cameramen and scores of curious individuals. Several persons attempting to enter the grounds were escorted away by police.

GIFTS STILL POUR IN

One man said he was the father of five sons and wanted to talk to the Colonel, but he was led away, too.

Felicitations and gifts continue to pour in from all over the world. One of the gifts was an elaborate baby carriage which displayed the manufacturer's name. This was refused at the gates.

Many children carrying flowers arrived in front of the mansion and asked to see the baby. Private detectives told them that was impossible and they were urged to return home.

LINDY'S MOTHER PLAN VISIT

DETROIT, June 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh Sr. announced today she will go to Englewood, N. J., within the next few days to pay her first visit to her grandson, born to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh Sunday. Mrs. Lindbergh only recently completed her season's work in the Detroit school where she is a teacher.

Chance for Lindy To Use 8 Gift Dolls Now

ST. LOUIS, June 24.—(AP.)—Visitors to the Jefferson Memorial here used to look at some of the gifts Col. Charles A. Lindbergh had received after his flight from New York to Paris and smile. What they wondered, would he ever do with eight dolls?

Today Mrs. Nettie H. Beauregard, curator of the Missouri Historical Society, which is the custodian for many of Lindbergh's gifts, said she was ready to send the dolls to Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh if they ask for them.

was told to see his ward chairman was indicated in a statement by Councilman George Kambach, chairman of the Public Safety Committee. He said:

"I want to inquire into the case, and I do not care to discuss it until then."

John S. Herron, president of Council, who returned to the city today, said he wanted to discuss Petroni's case with Councilman Kambach before taking action.

Herron said:

"If Petroni has had his permit for seven years, as the newspapers report, and if his building conforms with the regulations, he should get his permit."

DECLARES "SOME ARE"

It was while Director Clark supposedly was inquiring into the methods of the Building Inspection Department, which issues the fireworks permits, that Assistant Superintendent Frazier questioned again concerning the distribution of permits on ward chairman recommendation, said:

"Some of them are. O'Donnell has got some."

He referred to John (Pepper) O'Donnell, chairman of the Twenty-second Ward. Then he asked:

"Why doesn't Petroni go to see O'Donnell and everything would be fixed up all right?"

KLINE SHOWS APATHY

And, while the controversy continued, Mayor Kline's lack of interest over the charges that ward chairmen apparently run the city's bureau which is charged with protecting human lives from fire hazards is indicated by his statement made when the charges were called to his attention.

"The story is so silly that I can't see any reason to investigate it. I do not believe Frazier ever said it. I may call Frazier if I find time."

Mayor Kline is busy—getting ready for a European vacation.

Hawks Plans 12-Hr. Flight Across U. S.

LOS ANGELES, June 24.—(AP.)—Associates here of Capt. Frank Hawks announce that the cross-country flier will take delivery today in Wichita, Kan., of the monoplane in which he hopes to fly from coast to coast in 12 hours. Hawks holds the nonstop transcontinental record for flights in both directions.

Friends say he plans to surpass the speedy hops of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, Col. Roscoe Turner, and William Brock and Edward Schlee. Los Angeles to New York in breakfast-to-dinner time is his aim, they declare.

Sees Link Between Fascisti and U. S.

NEW YORK, June 24.—(INS.)—Fascism has many ties with America on economical grounds, Alberto de Stefani, first minister of finance in the Italian cabinet who is a visitor here, said today. He praised America's financial organizations.

OFFICER POKES HOOEY; GOES BACK ON JOB

Walsh Sends Policeman to Duty After Row; Court Administers $10 Fine

altercation with the inspector also was locked in a cell.

ADMITS "SOCKING" HOEY

"Yeah, I socked that guy Hoey, but I'd have socked him more only they didn't give me a chance."

This was the declaration of Patrolman Dacy this morning upon his return home from the South Side district when he was transfered and reinstated last night by Supt. Walsh.

"Hoey made a grab for my badge in the station after I brought his brother-in-law in and I told him he could give me a buck for it before I'd let him have it. I have to put up a buck for the badge and I wasn't letting him have it.

"He got tough and started shoving me around after arguing with me about arresting his brother-in-law and I poked him one or two, then he hollered to the other cops in the station to help him.

"They all came around later and shook hands with me and congratulated me for socking him."

MEN BOISTEROUS, HE SAYS

The two men arrested by Dacy were acting boisterously, the patrolman declared.

"They acted like they were drunk and I told them to quiet down. Then Donahue, Hoey's brother-in-law, started an argument and got a crowd around. I had to sock him to make him stay quiet and I pulled my gun to keep back the crowd, which was getting pretty unfriendly."

"Hoey had me thrown in a cell Sunday morning and I had to stay in all night without being allowed to telephone home. I suppose he'd have kept me until Monday morning if my brother hadn't got hold of the superintendent early Sunday before the hearings.

William Dacy

"One of my friends in the station called home for me, and my brother went up to see Mr. Walsh. He told them to let me out, and then yesterday he transferred me to the South Side so I wouldn't have to work under Hoey after he suspended me."

'WASN'T HIT,' SAYS HOEY

Inspector Hoey declared:

"The boy just got a little wild about the whole affair. He brought in these two men who, he said, had been singing in the street at 2 o'clock in the morning, and said he was going back for the other one. I asked:

"'How're you going to get him?'

"'Shoot him,' he replied, so I sent him home."

"Well, didn't the officer strike you, inspector?"

STOPS 2 IN STREET

The affair began early Sunday morning when Dacy flashed his light on Donahue and O'Toole while they were walking in Ward street, near Frazier street.

The officer claimed they attacked him.

Police from Oakland Station, who answered a riot call to the district, found Dacy with his prisoners and his pistol holding an angry mob at bay. Dacy, in defense, said other officers had been man-handled by gangs in that vicinity.

Hoey said his kin was en route to work at the time of his arrest, and intimated that Dacy had no right to arrest him.

The argument between Hoey and Dacy grew hot and reached its peak when Hoey attempted to place his subordinate under arrest.

DEFIES HOEY

Witnesses say Dacy replied to the inspector's action with a swing of his fist, and a half dozen police rushed to Hoey's aid. Hoey then demanded Dacy's badge and revolver, but Dacy refused to surrender them and defied Hoey to take them.

It was at this time, witnesses say, that Dacy shouted at Hoey:

"I know you, Hoey, and if you dare raise a fist to me I'll hit you six times for every once you hit me."

Conflicting stories were told at a Police Court hearing the following morning and Oakland police were ordered to arrest Donahue immediately. He was picked up, brought to the hearing and discharged. O'Toole also was discharged, and Dacy was fined $10 for his affair with Inspector Hoey.

Superintendent Walsh, this morning, declared he had transfered Dacy to the South Side, pending a hearing before the trial board a week from tomorrow.

"This boy is a likeable chap," declared the superintendent, "and I thought it would be well to transfer him out of the district for a while. He's a good boy and is good to his mother."

The charge against Dacy is conduct unbecoming an officer.

NEW YORK, June 24.—(INS.)—Read Admiral Richard E. Byrd left the city today on the destroyer Bainbridge for a trip up the Hudson River to Albany, where he will receive the state's distinguished service medal from Gov. Roosevelt. Mrs. Byrd and several members of the Antarctic expedition accompanied the explorer.

Peer Would Harness Atoms To Turn Factory Wheels

BERLIN, June 24.—(INS.)—A new source of power supply to be used by mankind was unveiled today after an address before the World Power Conference here by Sir Arthur Eddington.

Sir Arthur, famous astronomer, defined this source as supplying the inexhaustible power which heats the solar system.

The entire secret of Sir Arthur's enticing hint may be considered as the ability to incite at will the combat of atoms. The high ratio of atomic power is well known to scientists and it is such Sir Arthur indicated that a small container of water could be made to equal the productive strength of a modern power plant if scientists discovered the way to harness the atom to their wills.

Sub-atomic energy could be released by heating the atom to a temperature of 40,000,000 degrees centigrade, Sir Arthur said. Temperatures as high as 1,000,000 degrees centigrade have been reached in laboratory experiments, he said.

Considerable more research and practical experimentation must be done by astronomers before this source of power can be utilized, Sir Arthur said, but he added, Utopia seemed but around the corner.

12,000 ATTEND MEDICAL MEET

DETROIT, June 24.—(AP)—The responsibility of the doctor to society and the problem of the growing socialization of the medical profession formed the principal topics of discussion at the initial session of the eighty-first convention of the American Medical Association here.

Two high officers of the association, President M. K. Harris and President-elect William Gerry Morgan, appeared before the delegates.

Dr. Harris made a plea for medical centers owned and controlled by the profession as a means of counteracting the growing tendency of state direction of doctors.

Approximately 12,000 physicians, scientists and their families are attending the five-day convention. Technical and scientific papers were begun and will continue throughout the convention, each paper dealing with some specialized phase of medical science.

MERGER OF RAIL UNIONS FAILS

CLEVELAND, O., June 24.—(AP)—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in international convention voted not to merge with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. On the same motion the engineers voted to keep out anyone who is not a qualified engineer. This was taken to mean exclusion of airplane pilots on rail-plane lines and bus drivers on rail-bus lines.

The firemen have made no official negotiations to join the engineers, but amalgamation of the two unions has been informally discussed on frequent occasions, it was said.

ROTARY GAINS PICTURED IN PAGEANT

Founder, Ill, Shares in Program Depicting 25 Years of Club Progress

CHICAGO, June 24.—(INS)—Having witnessed in pageantry the growth within 25 years of Rotary International, 17,000 Rotarians today began the round of business sessions and social fetes which comprise the program of the silver anniversary convention of the world-wide organization.

Delegates from 67 different lands were among the thousands of members who witnessed the pageant last night at Chicago Stadium which depicted the rise within a quarter of a century of a Chicago attorney's idea of "service" into a world-wide ethical force.

LEADERS IN PAGEANT

The [illegible] pageant, the first [illegible] of events of the convention program, were the leaders who guided the organization through its first 25 years from a meeting of four friends to an organization of 137,000 members and 3,529 individual Rotary clubs in all parts of the world.

Paul Harris, founder of the organization, arose from a sick bed to greet the delegates. Harris appeared on the stage to join the other 15 charter members. He was escorted by the international president, Eugene Newton, and 17 past presidents.

FOUNDER SPEAKS

Harris, in his message to the assembly, expressed gratification at the spread of Rotary. He said:

"The Rotary Club has been adopted in practically every country of the world, embracing in its membership men of different races with different customs and different viewpoints, and yet the basic principles on which the movement started are still strictly observed.

"Just as Rotary has the purpose of promoting understanding and good will among the many and varied vocations found in our present day society, so it has an ever-increasing purpose in promoting friendship and good will amongst the nations of the world.

INTERNATIONAL PEACE

"If we are to achieve that goal which for centuries has been the dream and the hope of the people of the earth—the abolition of war as a means of settling international disputes—then the hearts of men must be so touched and molded that mutual understanding and good will take the place of fear and hatred."

A message will be read from President Hoover today at the first session. There will be addresses by Harris, Raymond M. Havens of Kansas City, and President Newton.

HORNE'S Semi-Annual SHIRT SALE

Starts TOMORROW

AT 8 A.M.

$1.65 EACH

Telephone Orders Tonight

Telephone Shopping Service will receive telephone orders until 9:30 o'clock this evening—call COurt 3000. Mail orders, also, will receive prompt and careful attention.

SHIRTS are indispensable garments in men's wardrobes, and because most men require daily, or more frequent changes, the subject has a practical interest for them—or their wives, if the latter accept the responsibility of looking after these details for them.

For this reason, the Semi-Annual Shirt Sale of this store, which, over a period of more than 40 years, has come to be recognized as the Greatest Sale of its kind in the country, is an event of genuine significance in the community.

At these times, men set business affairs aside for an hour or two to attend to their wants for the season. They have found this twice-a-year procedure not only a saving of time and effort, but the most economical method of buying shirts!

The fabrics, this year, are the finest we have ever had. A favorable market has made possible qualities never equaled before in this Sale. Wait till you see them!

The workmanship is the customary high standard which has distinguished this sale, and made it outstanding among events of similar character throughout the country. Better made shirts are not to be had at any price!

We have recognized the trend to white this summer. Over 50% of the stock are White Shirts—self-woven madrases, broadcloths and oxford cloths.

The White Shirts may be had with collars attached or neckband style; the Colored Shirts with separate collars to match, collar attached, or neckband style.

Neckband sizes, 13½ to 20, and sleeve lengths —please note—32 to 36.

The shirts will be arranged according to size and sleeve lengths, so that a man can see the entire assortment of styles and patterns, in his size, in one place.

The Sale will be held in the Basement, just below the Men's Furnishing Section, and reached in a few steps from the Main Floor, where there will be plenty of room for everybody, and super-facilities for quick service.

The Men's Store will open at 8 o'clock tomorrow—an hour earlier than the rest of the store—for the convenience of those who wish to shop before going to business.

There will be the customary Companion Specials in other Men's Wear.

NEW YORK June 24 (AP) — Suit for $250,000 was begun here today by the Standard Oil Tankers and Miners Transportation Co., owners of the steamship Pallas against the Lake Tankers Corporation, owners of the steamer Lafayette. The Pallas was all but destroyed in a fog off the Massachusetts coast when 40 persons were lost. The Pallas owners already have filed a $500,000 suit against the Panama owners.

Papers filed yesterday in the suit brought in Federal District Court claimed that the Panama was in every way a seaworthy vessel and was being navigated properly when the Pallas loomed out of the fog. The Panama could not avoid a collision, the papers averred.

Ship bags filled with clothing, found on the steamer's hull and investigators to believe it carried a crew of six. They have not learned whether the crew escaped on the raft as pictured.

CLARKE BANNED AS CITIZEN

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., June 24 — Refusal of the Beaver County courts to permit Dr. Robert Clarke, vice president of Geneva College, to take a modified oath to qualify as a United States citizen was affirmed by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, sitting at Philadelphia.

Dr. Clarke, a native of Ireland, asked Judge William A. McConnell, of the local courts to allow him to take a modified oath which would not conflict with his religious beliefs. He is a member of the Reformed Presbyterian Church. Judge McConnell refused the motion on the grounds that an applicant for citizenship must take the oath provided by Congress.

It was said an appeal would probably be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States.

ONLY A DOCTOR KNOWS WHAT A LAXATIVE SHOULD BE

Danger lies in careless selection of laxatives! By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, sallow complexions, gas on stomach and bowels, lack of appetite or energy, warns of constipation, you risk forming the laxative habit.

Depend on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one made from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach disorders. Its originator tried it in thousands of cases, found it safe for women, children and old folks, thoroughly effective for the most robust man. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. It is composed of fresh herbs and other pure ingredients. You can get it in generous bottles and ready for use at any druggist.

REBELS BEATEN BACK IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, June 24.—(AP)—Nationalist military dispatches today claimed success in fighting on all three war fronts.

A Suchow dispatch said the Nationalists in the past 24 hours had defeated the allied Northern forces in Northeast Honan province and had forced the rebels to withdraw toward the Chihli provincial boundary and westward toward Kaifeng, the Honanese capital.

Advices from Changsha asserted the Nationalists south of the Yangtse River throughout the provinces of Hunan and Kiangsi were hemming in the rebels and forcing them to retreat toward Kwangsi, from which province they had started on their march.

Previous government dispatches told of Nationalist gains in Shantung province, along the Yellow River.

Property Owners: Renting Agents:

Modernize the Bathroom —keep the tenant

HAS it ever occurred to you that paint, varnish and wall paper, while they may keep a house or apartment looking attractive, cannot hide old-fashioned, unsightly plumbing fixtures? Property is just as old and just as undesirable as its plumbing fixtures.

It is not reasonable to expect today's housewife to be content with an out-dated bathroom and an old-fashioned hard-to-keep-clean sink in the kitchen. "The bathtub doesn't look clean, but it really is." To expect her to make that apology to her guests again and again, is too much. Today the bathroom is no longer the neglected room in the home. It receives as much consideration as an interior as the other rooms of the home.

A great change has come in plumbing fixtures both in design and construction. Lavatories and baths have a new beauty of line and a new durability. Acid-Resisting Enamel insures permanence of glossy finish and will always be easy to keep clean. Water closets have been improved and are now more hygienic. Kitchen sinks now have an eight-inch back so that they may be placed under the window in the direct light.

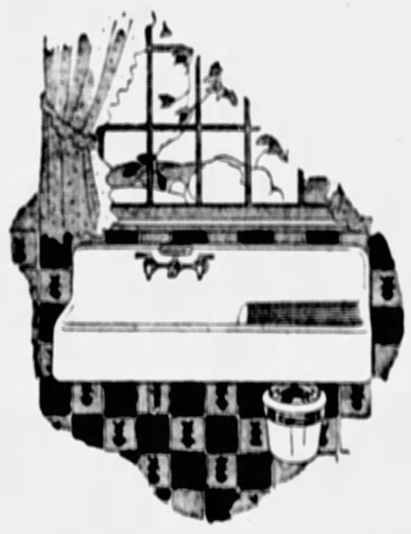
All of these new "Standard" Plumbing Fixtures are now made in white and nine beautiful colors. These new colors make possible an infinite variety of color schemes and bathrooms that are as beautiful as they are useful.

$17 Per Month for these three "Standard" Plumbing Fixtures installed!

Isn't that surprisingly little for a "Standard" bath, genuine vitreous china lavatory, and a modern, efficient water closet? Other groups for $14, $16, $22 and $24 per month. Any individual "Standard" Plumbing Fixture in white or color, may be purchased for a small down payment and a little each month.

Good tenants as well as home owners are well informed about this new trend in bathroom furnishing and decoration made possible by the many advances in plumbing fixture design, color and construction inaugurated by "Standard". They are no longer satisfied with mere utility.

Are your houses or apartments hard to keep rented because the plumbing fixtures are not all that they should be? Have you for some time wanted to replace them? And has the lack of ready cash deterred you from doing so? Then you should see your plumbing contractor immediately or come here, to the "Standard" Showroom, and obtain the complete details of the "Standard" Time Payment Plan.



$10 a month installs the "Standard" "Three 8's" Sink

"Standard" designers have realized the ideal combination of beauty and utility in the "Three 8's" Sink in color. The "Three 8's" Sink is available in regular enamel and in Acid-Resisting Enamel, which fruit and vegetable acids cannot roughen or discolor.

STATE FOUNTAIN GIFT ASSURED

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—President Hoover signed a bill introduced by Representative Watson of Langhorne permitting the Pennsylvania Gift Fountain Association to erect a fountain in the District of Columbia at an estimated cost of $1,000,000.

Representative Watson announced he would confer with Secretary Mellon, co-originator of the fountain idea, to determine the method of raising funds and the employment of a sculptor. The Fine Arts Commission has tentatively fixed the location of the fountain on a site bounded by E street, Pennsylvania avenue, to Fifteenth street and Fourteenth street. The entire block is to be razed in the federal building program.

Representative Watson said Pennsylvanians in Washington and residents of the state would be asked to contribute to the fountain fund.

BOYS DERAIL ENGINE, CAR

The engine and a coach of a train of the Union Collieries Company were derailed on the Unity Railways yesterday near Renton. No one was injured. It was said at the company offices that two boys had placed a derail on the track, which caused the accident.

Engineer R. G. Walton of the train figured in another accident two weeks ago when he succeeded in stopping his engine in a wild ride which started when two cars got loose and bumped the engine on which he was working.

Walton had been oiling the engine when it was struck. Unable to stop the locomotive from the outside, Walton crawled along the outside until he was able to climb into the cab.

5 Pounds In 20 Days

Read how Mrs. Willa Pugsley, of Arkansas gained nearly 5 pounds in less than 20 days:

"McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets have worked wonders for me. Have nearly finished the second box, feeling better in every way and have taken on nearly five pounds of flesh, much to my delight. I can recommend McCoy's to do all they claim."

A New Jersey boy gained 10 pounds in 21 days; a New York mother and daughter gained 7 pounds. And in fact men, women and children everywhere are gaining new weight, strength, vitality and energy from McCoy's.

The reason is that McCoy's have the same marvelous flesh-forming vitamins as liquid cod liver oil; and in this respect are hundreds of times richer than even milk, butter, eggs or cream. The vitamins are directly extracted from Norwegian cod liver oil and sealed under a pleasant sugar coat.

Read druggists' remarkable MONEY-BACK offer—McCoy's are guaranteed to give any man, woman or child the increased weight desired or purchase price refunded. Just ask for McCoy's—60 tablets 60 cents.

ARE BREAST FED BABIES HEALTHIER IN AFTER LIFE

German Lady Warns Against Departing From Nature's Way.

Mrs. E. L. Stitt, of Kittanning, Pa., who has raised six sons and three daughters, and now has thirty-one grandchildren, states her experience on this important question:

"Often," she says, "a baby will seem to do better for a while on the bottle than nursing at the breast. But I always feel sorry for the poor little things compelled to try to live on a miserable substitute for mother's milk. I have seen it tried too often and I think it always does harm in the end. My own children were all nursed at the breast and every one of them grew up strong and healthy.

"But my eldest daughter made the mistake of bottle feeding her first two babies. I did not blame her, because her milk was scanty and at that time we did not know about World's Tonic. These poor little babies lived, but they never have been very strong.

"All the grandchildren that the good God has sent us since have had wonderful health. Some of them are grown men and women now, some still children, but all are strong and healthy and smart and loving. But the two poor bottle fed babies are now pale and sickly men. They are not smart at their work like the others. What makes me feel worse is that they are cold hearted and not loving to their mother.

"No mother should deny her baby the strength-giving food that only a mother's breast can give!

"If the milk is scanty—if the baby doesn't seem to thrive—don't make the awful mistake of experimenting with canned and bottle substitutes. Do as we did. Let the mother take World's Tonic for a few days. It will refresh and cleanse her system, purify her milk, increase its flow, and make the milk itself a tonic to the baby. You will be surprised how quickly the puny child gains weight when the nursing mother takes World's Tonic. In after years that baby will love its mother in the warm-hearted, old-fashioned way. Bottle fed babies may make cold-hearted men.

"World's Tonic is on sale at Dow's, Boyce & Leggett's, Mayflower and all other modern drug stores. (A-146)

What Movie Title Does This Cartoon Suggest?

Notice the cartoon printed above. It represents or in some way suggests the title of a motion picture. The correct title is included in the list printed directly under the cartoon.

The Sun-Telegraph's great $5,000 Cash Movietest consists of thirty cartoons similar to this one. With each is a similar list of titles that includes the correct title for that particular cartoon. Your job is to name the title represented by each of the thirty cartoons.

The fifty prizes you see listed at the left will be awarded contestants submitting correct or nearest correct lists of titles for the thirty cartoons.

No tricks. No catches. Neatness doesn't count. No letter to write. You compete against no one as far as obtaining the greatest number of subscriptions is concerned. It requires just a slight personal effort on your part. This contest has nothing to do with getting into the movies.

Mail the coupon at the left, right now. It will bring you all thirty of the cartoons at once.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

A HILL BILLY SONG complex will be manifest by KDKA at 8:30 tonight when the local station picks up Eddie Younger and his Mountaineers in a half hour entertainment of music peculiar to the backwoodsmen of Kentucky and Tennessee. Music in a similar vein will be a WJAS offering at 7 o'clock.

Bobby Meeker

Ev ready Hour, WCAE, at 9, will have the Frohne Sisters as guests. They will sing three selections, including their interpretation of the "St. Louis Blues."

The Rev. Dr Carl Wallace Petty, who has had a tremendous fan mail on the "Evening Altar" at KDKA, will bring the present series to a conclusion at 7:30 with a short inspirational talk, "Today." The "Evening Altar" series has been a continuation of Sacred Songs which feature will be resumed next Tuesday.

Bobby Meeker's Orchestra will be heard in a half hour program at 11:05 over KDKA.

Morris Metcalf, president of the Radio Manufacturers' Association, is to talk over KDKA Thursday night at 6 o'clock while the guest of Bosch dealers here.

Latest advice is that Ben G. Erskine, vice president of the RMA, will come here with Metcalf.

The King and Queen of England are to attend a special Thanksgiving service commemorating restoration of St. Paul Cathedral in London, which will be broadcast tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock by KDKA and WCAE.

The Frohne Sisters are really related, all daughters of a Wisconsin minister.

Robert M. Thompson, "40 Fathom" Owen and "Howdy" Clark, of WJAS, had much business afoot yesterday.

Thompson played host at Chartiers Country Club, turned in an "84." Owen pulled through with 109, but Clark lost himself in a berry patch on the thirteenth hole and had to be satisfied with 114.

* * *

How that boy Thompson can sock 'em! He addresses the ball in gentle terms and winds up by singing "I Wanta Go Where You Go." That's always somewhere near the green.

CRICKET NEWS

It's been a long time since we've had our puzzle club meeting. So with "Howdy" Clark the presiding officer we offer this one.

Count the number of times a cricket chirps a minute. Subtract 50, multiply the result by two. Then add 40. And the final figure will be the exact temperature in Fahrenheit.

Next time a cricket sits outside your window, check up on him!

This WESTINGHOUSE Automatic Toaster special this month only at the low price of 5.95. Also may be purchased on very liberal terms.

And all "shades" of toast can be had automatically by simply setting the lever.

Slice by slice an entire loaf of bread is quickly transformed into this delicious delicacy which is so popular for either a breakfast or a banquet. It is done to your favorite "shade", ready for butter, and ready to eat in only a few minutes time with the Electric Toaster.

High Blood Pressure Shortens Life

Relief for high blood pressure and other health destroying ailments that have kept thousands of sufferers in misery and doubt for years—is now seen in the modern discovery — BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUM.

The importance of this discovery cannot be denied when the life insurance companies refuse to issue policies to applicants with high blood pressure because it tends to shorten the span of life.

High blood pressure gives little warning, and until certain symptoms appear you are not aware of it. You may have head pains, hot flashes, flushed face, dizzy spells, shortness of breath, sleeplessness, nervousness and palpitation of the heart. Remember that HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE is a symptom and not a disease in itself—IT IS NATURE'S WARNING TO TAKE NOTICE.

FLOOD CONTROL HERE COSTLY

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP).—Testimony that it would require dams costing $59,000,000 to give the upper Ohio region $60,000,000 of benefits was given to the House Flood Control Committee by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of the army engineers.

Questioned by Representative Dunbar (Rep.), Indiana, the general said it could be possible from an engineering standpoint to lower the flood stage at Pittsburgh by the construction of 11 dams on the upper Ohio and the Monongahela rivers.

He advanced the opinion that the dam project on the upper Ohio would not have a great effect on the flood stage at Cairo, Ill.

The committee plans a 10-day tour of flood control works along the Mississippi, which is expected to start at New Orleans July 10.

Lloyd Comedy to Have Premiere Before "Living Dead"

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 24.

SURELY the strangest motion picture premiere in the world will be given Harold Lloyd's new comedy, "Feet First."

Instead of opening on Broadway or in Hollywood, where the beams of the great searchlights scrape the heavens, "Feet First" will receive its initial showing before 450 lepers at Kalaupapa on the Island of Molokai, land of "the living dead."

This is the news brought to Hollywood today by Harold's company, which has just returned from a three weeks' talking picture location trip on the Honolulu liner Malolo.

Harold Lloyd

Though the prospect of a motion picture premiere under such circumstances has a touch of the Macabre, pathos is uppermost in the story that lies behind it.

GETS WIRELESS

When Harold arrived in Honolulu, he found three wireless messages from the leper colony begging him to speak to them over the radio. Just a day before Harold had turned down the request of a chain of theaters to speak into the microphone.

But this was different. Ordering that no publicity be sent out on his plan, he sent a confidential message to Molokai, informing the colony at what hour he would address them on the radio. He went on at the appointed time and made the first radio speech in his career.

In addition to this, he promised the colony that they would get the first glimpse of his new comedy. If talking picture equipment is not available, he will have a special silent print made up and shipped to Molokai for the occasion.

BIGGEST RECEPTION

It is told that Honolulu's reception to Harold Lloyd was the most tumultuous in the history of the city. More than 30,000 people were present to greet the comedian as he came off the boat. The crowd extended for five blocks.

"Feet First" will contain the first talking motion picture scenes ever made on an ocean liner in actual transit. Harold's technical men tell me that the chief difficulty was to overcome the howling of the wind through the recording apparatus.

SUE CAROL ILL

Sue Carol must stop her film work temporarily because of illness. She had a tonsil operation and then caught a cold. Nick Stuart gives telephonic assurance that it isn't serious.

Joe Frisco, of vaudeville fame and now out here for the movies, pulled this one on George Jessel:

"In these days, an actor can make more money selling his contract than working it out. Georgie Jessel sold his for $60,000. I saw his picture and I believe George could have gotten $80,000 if he had held out."

CHARITY VENTURE

Today sees the opening of "The Screen Stars Shop," a charity venture to provide money for the motion picture relief fund. The stock of this shop is comprised of nearly new apparel donated by a group of stars in Hollywood. In addition to this, there will be costume jewelry, trinkets and other ornaments for souvenir hunters.

St. Luke's Church Arranges Outing

CRIPPLED RUM SELLER FREED

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—(AP.)—Peter Schiffert, 63, of Emaus, Pa., whose attorney said he had taken up bootlegging because injuries received in 27 dynamite explosions had forced him to give up his regular occupation of well digging, was freed on probation by Federal Judge O. B. Dickinson after he had tottered up to the bar of the court and pleaded guilty.

Schiffert's attorney told Judge Dickinson that every bone in the defendant's body had been broken by dynamite explosions and that he had been a patient in hospitals 10 times, the last time for nearly two years. Assistant United States Attorney Michael Stoney agreed that the court should extend mercy, and Judge Dickinson imposed a prison sentence of six months, which he promptly suspended, and placed the man on a year's probation.

ELOPER JAILED AS KIDNAPER

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 24.—(AP.)—John Norfolk, 22, of Annapolis, and Miss Mary Hirstius of Eastport, were married yesterday at Prince Frederick and last night he was confined in the county jail on a charge of abduction preferred by his father-in-law. The couple disappeared from Annapolis Saturday and Washington and Baltimore police were on the watch for them. They returned today and the young man was arrested as he was about to place a telephone call.

The father-in-law, Otto L. Hirstius said he had protested against Norfolk's attention to his daughter because of her age, claiming she was only 15.

Norfolk was given a hearing before a magistrate and ordered committed to the jail to await action by the October grand jury. Hirstius said he would lodge a charge of perjury against Norfolk in connection with swearing to the girl's age, but it was later learned that Miss Hirstius secured the license.

Civil War Shell Explodes, Youth Loses Hand

BEDFORD, Pa., June 24.—Russell Lybarger, 18, is in Timmins Hospital here after the amputation of his left hand, which was shattered by explosion of a Civil War bomb.

The Lybarger family, living near Bedford, for 13 years had used an old army shell for a door stop. The young man was attempting to chisel dirt out of an opening of the supposed empty shell when it exploded. The shell was made of iron an inch thick, eight inches long and four inches in diameter.

It is said the shell was brought from Gettysburg in the sixties by a member of the family of the late Joseph W. Tomlinson.

HIGHER WAGES TERMED VITAL

PHILADELPHIA, June 24 — (AP.) — An increase in the national wage scale was described as an economic necessity in increasing the consuming power of the country to its production level during an address by Edward F. McCrady, legislative representative of the American Federation of Labor here.

McCrady, who was the principal speaker at the nineteenth annual convention of the American Federation of Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers, quoted statistics placing the total manufacturers' and agricultural production of this country in 1927 at $72,458,823,289. In this period, he said, the wages paid to workers and salaries paid to executive and office staffs amounted to only $50,058,000,000. The difference between these figures, he said, must be decreased so as to allow this country to be able to consume its own products.

Regarding unemployment, he said that, despite the interest expressed by President Hoover, a bill introduced to increase the federal employment service has been buried.

HUNT LOST BOY IN MOUNTAINS

RIVERSIDE, Cal., June 24 — (AP.) — Over the crags of Mt. San Jacinto, 10,000 feet above the Southern California desert, searchers led by veteran Alpinists are hunting for 12-year-old Harold Johnson, Boy Scout, son of R. J. Johnson, postmaster at Corona.

Harold strayed from a company of Scouts on a hiking expedition last Friday. He had bedding and was versed in mountain and timber lore and known to be resourceful. But the fact that he has a foot ailment and virtually no food caused apprehension.

An Army aviator spied a boy he thought might be Harold, but no trace of him was found by the land searching party. The chief fear was that he may have fallen over a cliff and be lying injured in some canyon or crevasse.

Informed Butler had fired from an automobile as he was passing Hornyak's home, Private Harris learned, he reported, that Butler was driving without a drivers' license or plates. He also was charged with these offenses.

3 PUT ON TRIAL FOR GRAFT

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., June 24 — (AP.) — D. M. Rosser, Leslie J. Harrison and P. J. Conway, commissioners of Luzerne County, were placed on trial here on charges of misdemeanor in office.

The charges grow out of the recent investigation of the controller's report for 1928. The present case attacks the contracts and payments made on a section of the Harvey's Lake road, it being alleged that $246,637.21 was unlawfully expended on the road between Luzerne and Trucksville.

The selection of a jury was completed early yesterday afternoon.

Four Constables Of Mercer in Ousters

MERCER, Pa., June 24 — Ouster proceedings have been brought against four county constables by District Attorney Leo McKay.

Morgan Is Put in Dungeon And Plans Revenge

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Dean Ward Kent, a successful young college graduate, gets drunk while celebrating on New Year's Eve. His automobile, going at top speed, crashed into another machine and two persons are fatally injured. Kent is charged with manslaughter and sentenced to serve seven years in the penitentiary. Duncan Morgan, a handsome chap who had been a bank clerk, is sentenced to the penitentiary for robbery. He has been in prison before and does not fear the new sentence. Kent is assigned to share a cell with Morgan and "Machine Gun Butch" Schmidt. Schmidt, a hardened criminal, is now serving life for murder. Schmidt steals a locket containing a picture of Anne Marlow from Kent's pocket. Kent is in love with Anne. Morgan gets the picture from Schmidt and is attracted to the girl. He learns her name from Kent. Morgan's attorney visits the penitentiary to tell him that he will be free on a parole in a short time. Morgan sees Anne, who visiting Kent, and is struck by her beauty.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

Duncan Morgan, who had taken his post-graduate education in stir, had learned to take "the breaks" with a philosophical shrug. He was prepared always for the worst, so that when he found himself plunged into some calamitous misfortune his mind already was made up that his troubles were transitory—and he calmly faced them. All that wasn't misfortune was "velvet."

But this time luck had caught him unprepared. Fate had smacked him squarely between the eyes—from behind. And he was groggy from the foul clout. For, deep down in his bosom already had begun to reawaken that throb of virtue which psychiatrists describe as the instinctive desire of man to live honestly, or maybe the unnatural craving not to live dishonestly.

Something in the eyes of Anne Marlowe—that straightforward, clean gaze of hers, had primed this metamorphosis of his soul. Never before had a woman appeared to him as a spiritual necessity. He had regarded them impersonally from the corporeal sense—and had clung to that danger-signal platitude of his ilk—love 'em where you find 'em an' leave 'em where you love 'em.

Yes—he had plenty of time to reason things out and cool off in the cooler. The dungeon precluded everything but mental activity. In the black blankness of his solitary cell, where he could not see, where he could hear only the faint groans and hysterical protests of other damned, where he could hardly move, Duncan Morgan lay and thought.

Wants Revenge

Morgan Loses Hope For Parole

Bitterness burned deep within the man. He had just crept up to the lip of the chasm when he was shoved back to the depths. He had preserved a good record this stretch. He had been on the eve of hope and happiness when Kent had crossed him. That he had planned to take Kent's girl did not occur to him. Morgan did not think of it in that light. He had never considered Kent's equity in the girl of the picture. Morgan had long thought of her as his own. His business was taking what he wanted, no matter whose.

His crowning urge now was revenge. He could never expect to obtain his freedom on parole. During his term in prison he had entered halfheartedly into the schemes of Butch and his gang for a break, but he had never intended to carry out his end. All the time he knew that outside drag was pulling for his release, and he believed the efforts of his attorney would have materialized before any schemes of Butch and his associates could come to a head.

mere contributing influence of an unknown woman, to test the paths of righteousness; who partially, it is true, by good behavior, had made himself eligible to parole—snatched from his cell without a hearing of any sort and thrown into a lightless perpendicular coffin to exist for 30 days on stale bread and water.

Duncan Morgan was to emerge from this a better man, knowing all the time that his past conduct would forever convict him when the slightest suspicion rested upon him—convict him without an even chance to prove his innocence. Nothing in all the world so disheartens a man as to find he cannot be let alone to go straight when in his own heart and soul he wants to; when all circumstances around him combat any move for respectability and decency.

Talks to Butch

Schmidt Refuses to Worry About Dungeon

Morgan was now set on one thing. He would leave this prison at any cost. He would leave it for the sole purpose of revenge on all men, and upon Dean Kent in particular. He would strike at Kent in the most vulnerable spot—he would swipe from him, or at least turn against him, the woman Kent loved and who, for all Morgan knew, loved him. Why should he try to go on the level? Try to live an honorable, upright life, for what? For a woman? He would never hope, with the stigma of his past, clinging to him like fuliginous aura, to make a woman love him as a good citizen. Anyway, as he had found, they fell more eagerly and easily for the charm of a crook . . . but revenge! Ah!

The outer door of the dungeon had hardly closed behind the guards before he heard the faint, inquisitive voice of Butch, the recalcitrant killer. He already knew via the grapevine about Morgan's misadventure.

"Hello!"

The melancholy greeting was passed along from cell to cell. Now from a Negro whose voice trailed off into a lamenting spiritual; now from a weakened boy, who began to cry; now from an old man, who uttered it with a sigh of hardboiled hopelessness.

But the voice of Butch was louder, and cheerful. Good old

SENATOR REED'S CHALLENGE ACCEPTED

Voorsanger, Legionnaire, to Debate Veterans' Bill at August State Convention

William S. Voorsanger, a member of the American Legion, has criticized the action of Senator David A. Reed in the Senator's alleged attempt to block disposition of the veterans' compensation bill which last night was passed by the Senate. Voorsanger also accepted Senator Reed's challenge to debate the bill at the legion convention in Harrisburg in August. Senator Reed is charged with stating that the World War veteran's bill does not reflect the true sentiment of the American Legion.

Last week Voorsanger sent a telegram to Senator Reed saying the county legion had passed a resolution condemning the disposition of Congress to delay relief legislation for World War veterans, and the frequent attitude of some senators and representatives to block passage by resorting to technicalities or opposition to some particular provision.

Voorsanger declares that the only one in the Senate who opposed the current bill was Senator Reed, himself a legionnaire. His opposition is based on insignificant provisions that could have been overlooked, Voorsanger alleges.

JUDGE RULES SALES NOT SHOWN

Appeals Court Decision Cited in Refusing Writ; Showboat Hearing Held

Duplicating his decision on the Nixon cafe, Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, in Federal Court today, dismissed a bill of complaint asking a liquor padlock injunction against the Plaza restaurant, 535 Fifth avenue.

The court, citing a decision by Judge Victor B. Woolley, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, held that the dry agents had failed to produce evidence that liquor was being kept, sold or bartered on the premises.

Agents testified they had seen ginger ale served in the Plaza and that patrons had produced bottles containing what the agents believed to be liquor. No evidence of sale was forthcoming.

A hearing on making permanent a preliminary padlock injunction against the Showboat was begun.

John Kreck and George C. Clifford, dry agents, testified they went to the Showboat May 3 and 7, each accompanied by a woman, and that on each visit they bought a pint of liquor from Don Collins at $7 a pint. One of the women was identified only as a "Miss Price."

United States Attorney Louis E. Graham won a legal skirmish over legality of the search warrant used in the raid when prohibition agents invaded the boat May 15.

The court ordered George Jaffe dropped as one of the alleged proprietors, holding the government produced no evidence to warrant use of his name. The others named are Milton Jaffe, Louis Markowitz and F. F. Graham.

Agent Charles E. Barnhart described the raid and testified to finding liquor on the boat.

POWER PLANT PLANNED HERE

The application has been referred to the War Department.

The request of the West Penn company is believed to be the first move for big power development on the Allegheny River, which may have a bearing on the proposed canal between Lake Erie and the Ohio River.

CLAIM SPROUL USED CASH TO PAY CHECKS

'Glory Barn' Receipts Taken For Debts, Critics Charge In Stormy Church Meet

Charges that money collected in Evangelist John W. Sproul's Glory Barn, East End, has been used to satisfy "bad" checks Sproul is alleged to have issued during his campaign, were made by Charles G. Mayer, of Wilkinsburg, during a hectic meeting featured by arguments between the evangelist's supporters and opponents in the Glory Barn, Shetland and Lincoln avenues, last night.

A squad of police under Acting Lieut. William O'Connor, were called into the building to preserve order when the arguments became personal and threatening, it was said. Cecil R. Thomas, former manager, and Henry D. Young, choir leader in Sproul's campaigns, announced that they had severed connection with the evangelist. Thomas is said to be Sproul's brother-in-law.

SPEAKERS HECKLED

The meeting was called to discuss the forming of a permanent church. Many of the speakers were "hissed and booed" and at one time a large portion of the audience marched from the building. Another meeting is to be held tonight.

Both Thomas and Young were quoted as stating that they had lost faith in Sproul and that at times when they believed in him they had lied for him for no other purpose than the Gospel's sake. They also stated, it was said, that funds collected in the church for various purposes had been used to further Sproul's campaign in Homestead.

When Young charged that money collected in the East End had been used to further the Homestead campaign, several persons in the audience are said to have contradicted him and others invited him outside to settle the question. Thomas was said to have declared Sproul did not always turn over to him money that had been collected. Thomas served as treasurer of the congregation before it closed for the summer.

DENIES GETTING MONEY

Mayer, one of the leaders in the movement to form a permanent Glory Barn, was quoted as stating that money collected three weeks ago on the church platform had been used to make good checks Sproul is said to have given E. J. Vogel, of Millvale. Vogel, who was present at the meeting, denied receiving any of the money.

Mayer declared for an incorporated church with Young as pastor and Thomas as assistant pastor. D. S. Smith, another leader for the incorporated church, appealed for the audience to listen to Mayer.

The Camera Question Box

Today's Question: Now that he has the added responsibility of being a father, should Col. Lindbergh stop flying? What name would you suggest for the baby?

S. A. Landau

S. A. LANDAU, wholesale hatter, Squirrel Hill: Whether he stops flying or not is purely his own affair, and he will probably continue regardless of what people think.

Miss Schneider

MISS ELEANORE SCHNEIDER, saleswoman, Sharpsburg: I don't see why Lindy should stop flying. That's his work and he has to have an occupation just as much as any father does. Why not call the baby Charles Morrow?

Louis Caplan

LOUIS CAPLAN, clerk, East End: I don't see what difference it makes whether he stops flying or not. And the baby could hardly have a better name than Charles Jr.

Miss Burdis

MISS M. JEAN BURDIS, stenographer, Carnegie: Col. Lindbergh should certainly not give up flying. He ought to keep right on and then teach his son how to fly just as soon as he's old enough. And why shouldn't the baby be called Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Harry Schmidt

HARRY SCHMIDT, clerk, East End: There really isn't any good reason why Lindy should stop flying. Eventually, everyone will be using airplanes and he, the greatest of fliers, shouldn't stop now. Why not just call the baby Junior?

Miss Delaney

MISS MARY C. DELANEY, stenographer, Castle Shannon: I don't think Lindbergh should give up flying. There isn't any more danger for him now than there was before his son was born, and he had a wife to think of then. Charles Lindbergh, Jr., would be the most appropriate name for the new member of the family, I think.

2 SENTENCED IN BANK THEFT

Sentences of two years in the workhouse were imposed today by Judge Joseph M. Swearingen in Criminal Court on George H. Coleman, 23, of West Willox road, Brentwood, for embezzlement and on Max Green, 30, of Lemington avenue, for being accessory to embezzlement from the Western Savings Bank.

Sentence was deferred pending an application for a new trial in the case of William J. Carlton, 28, of Carson street, found guilty of being an accessory to the embezzlement.

Coleman, a bookkeeper at the bank, who fainted twice during the trials, had turned state's evidence against the other two. He had testified that over a year and a half he had paid out of the bank's funds from $8,000 to $10,000 to Green and about $6,000 to Carlton, and had covered up the payments by manipulating the books. He said that all he had received in return from Green, who is a tailor, was $150 and a suit of clothes.

Carlton had testified that Coleman had told him he was in the bootleg business and was using this method to cover his traces. He said he had paid back virtually everything Coleman had given him.

INSIST MERGER COUNT FAIR

The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company today denied charges of unfair counting of ballots in the vote on the merger with Bethlehem Steel in an answer to the amended petition of Myron C. Wick and the International Shares Corporation, filed in the Mahoning County, O., court of common pleas.

The answer also stated that, while H. G. Dalton, vice-president of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, is also a director of Bethlehem Steel, his financial interest in the Youngstown company is far greater.

Charges that E. G. Grace and other officers of Bethlehem are receiving unreasonably large salaries were also denied.

The answer declared that proxies for stock sold following the closing of the company's books, but before the meeting, were legally voted in favor of the merger.

BLACK SATIN SHIMMERS BACK INTO THE MODE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, JUNE 24.—A material triumph is to be recorded in the return to favor of black satin. If your sartorial suppressed desire happens to be composed of this eminently good looking and practical fabric then you can be prepared to express it next season. For most of the new autumn collections include one or more satin frocks of the afternoon and coat-frock variety, and very delightful and wearable models they are too. We think that you will like the attractive black satin coat-frocks that many stylists predict will dot the autumn landscape. They are trig and trim without being too tailored, for a frock of black satin if too severely cut has something of a funeral air that is anything but desirable. By the same token a frock of this material with too much ornamentation or too elaborately cut is inclined to be somewhat stagey, a characteristic that every well-dressed woman strenuously avoids.

TO GIVE YOU an advance idea of the kind of treatment accorded to satin by the couturiers here we are sending you a sketch of a much admired model in the new Vionnet collection that is as ever replete with clever items and ideas. The model shown is of very heavy black satin and is a wrap-over dress with the surplice closing in front held at the left side with a single button placed just below the ribbon belt. The raglan yoke cut in a piece with the sleeves is drawn in soft folds across the back of the neck and has scarf ends which tie in a bow-knot on the left shoulder. The circular skirt is open its entire length at the side fastening, lapping well over at the front. The softly draped gilet is of flesh-colored georgette. It will be noted that no attempt has been made to take in the width of the sleeve—it is straight throughout its length.

AN ECHO from a recent meeting at Longchamp is to be found in the sketch of a colorful ensemble seen there. Over an emerald green crepe de Chine frock was worn a tailored coat of matching green velours de laine, with a half belt across the back and double breasted closing in front.

The collar is of beaver. The coat fabric was used for the little beret, trimmed with a grosgrain ribbon band and bow in lighter green. Emerald green pumps completed this happy costume so appropriate for an out-of-door event where practical smartness is so much to the point.

AMERICANS ARE FAVORED BY LOW PRICE OF SUGAR

Most Nations Pay Much Higher Price for This Product

According to statistics, sugar is one of the cheapest food products bought by the American housewife day in and day out. In Australia and New Zealand, where the per capita consumption is thirty pounds more per year than in the United States, a higher price is maintained.

The standards of this country in refining sugar, not only insure uniform color, granulation, density and purity, but give it unlimited keeping qualities. Besides, Americans are offered sugar in many inviting forms, conveniently packed to suit their needs.

The low price of sugar, its many uses, and the important part it plays in the diet should not be overlooked. It is one of the chief ingredients in wholesome desserts, including puddings, custards and ice cream. It improves the taste appeal of beverages, nutritious stewed and fresh fruits, also breakfast cereals. Used as a seasoning with salt, sugar heightens the flavor of vegetables rich in vitamins and minerals.

The healthy, well-fed United States Army consumes considerably more sugar per capita than those in civilian life. Inasmuch as the diet of these soldiers is constantly watched by medical and dietary experts, this consumption of sugar is significant. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

FOLGER LEAVES MUSEUM, FUND

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP.)—The will of Henry C. Folger, who was chairman of the Standard Oil Company, of New York, leaves approximately $10,000,000, a world famous Shakespeare collection and a museum to house it in, as a gift to the United States "for the promotion and diffusion of knowledge in regard to Shakespeare."

The museum building is under construction in Washington adjacent to the property of the congressional library. The will places administration of the collection in the hands of the trustees of Amherst College.

For compensation, the trustees are directed to take out of the income of the Shakespeare fund and pay to Amherst College one-fourth of the annual net income until such a share amounts to $250,000.

Out of the remainder of the income, life annuities totaling $90,000 are to be paid to Mrs. Folger and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Folger.

The gift to the nation consists of the entire Folger estate after payment of the following specific bequests: $50,000 each to Mrs. Mary Folger Wells, a sister, and Stephen L. and Edward Folger, brothers, $25,000 each to a nephew and five nieces.

TELL IT TO SALLY

BY SALLY MARTIN

Does It Pay to "Go Easy" With Friend's Money?

Or will he think more of you if you knock it for a row of pins

As I had heard a lot about gold diggers and none of it good. So when she went out she made up her mind to be considerate. To try to remember that Bob wasn't a millionaire and not crab it he didn't take her to the biggest shows and the swankiest night clubs.

And as Bob seemed to appreciate her little attentions. Apparently not. Neither did Bill nor Tom. After she had talked economy for a while they all faded out of the picture.

Wherefore Acres mad. And I don't mean maybe. I received this letter today.

"Dear Sally:

"I've got a case of a peeve I've got to air somebody so I guess you're elected being that so many people write to you.

"What I'm fed up and tired of is these females who wail and talk so much about wanting to find some man who isn't a gold-digger. They make me sick! Not because I like gold-diggers or want to be one but because when it comes down to brass tacks they don't mean what they say.

TELLS HER EXPERIENCE

"I'm going to tell you about my experience. I went with Bob for about ten months and because he didn't have much of a job I thought I would be considerate. So instead of going to the big theater where admission was high I told him there was a show at a smaller theater that I would like to see. After the show he would suggest going to some chop house or night club. And you know such places are expensive. So dumb me said: Oh, let's go home. I'll make something and we can sit and talk. Well he said all right but I could see that he wasn't satisfied. And that night he left and I haven't seen him since.

"Then there was Bill. He went to the same church I did. He had a job with very small pay, and because I objected to his taking me out and spending money like nobody's business—some of it borrowed—he passed out of the picture.

THIRD ONE DROPS OUT

"Next there was Tom. I went out with him for the first time two months ago. He was a very, very nice fellow. I can't stay out real late at night, so when he suggested going some place to dance and dine after the show I said I would rather go home and we can cook something there. Well I didn't hear from him any more either . . . or from any other fellows. It seems that fellows are not what they pretend they are. They yap about wanting a girl who doesn't pet and isn't a golddigger. But when they find one who is willing to stay at home once in a while or go to a cheaper spot now and then they evade.

But I've had my lesson and I just pity the fellow who first asks me for a date. Why? Well because I've waked up and I'm going out to make whoopee galore and just make the money fly. And will I care how much it does spend? I'll say I will. It's a third funeral. Why should I bother about it? I hired that little stiff and where did I get me? It got me a line over what at home all alone night after night while all the other girls were out having the time of their lives.

SNUB AND FADEOUT

"These darned fellows do a lot of weeping and yapping and write. Give me the old-fashioned girl. But when a girl tries to show them that she really cares about their welfare what does she get? A snub and a cold fadeout and never more to see him again.'

Oho! Old fashioned girls indeed. Don't talk to me boys. Or else act like you talk!

I suppose this is a terribly long letter but believe me I mean it when I say that from now on I'm a different girl. I'm no longer 'old-fashioned' but just newly born and more than the up-to-the-minute girl. Believe me I had my lesson trying to be fair to these boys. Oh boy! I feel sorry for the next one that asks me for a date. He's going to get the surprise of his sweet young life. Don't blame me. I'm only human too. ADELE.

What about Dave? Elmer? John? Pete?

Is it true that you get mad at girls who won't let you strut the heavy money stuff? Do you insist on being regarded as a financial giant even if you had to hock your other pants to buy the dinner? Or do you really appreciate the Sweet, Sensible Girl who tries to help you economize?

And what's your experience, Patty? Betsy? Polly? Rose?

Must you gold dig to keep the boy friend really interested?

Let's hear your side of this brawl. And make it snappy. There are several thousand Marcels and plus-fours listening in.

THE LINDBERGH FAMILY -:- Drawn by Nell Brinkley

This fine young lady, with the wistful and amiable little face that had become familiar to homes throughout the world, is Anne Morrow Lindbergh. She started out as "the girl that LINDY married." Later she was captioned "Mrs. Charles Lindbergh." Later still, the quiet little person who never made a bid for publicity for herself, won the affections of the American people and became "Anne Lindbergh." Now she is universally known with real affection, peculiar admiration and regard, as LITTLE ANNE MORROW, "Lindy's" wife. She is a big personality and a wonderful girl all by her self!

Strange how this amiable little person so completely and swiftly identified herself with her husband's element—took to the air from the day of her marriage almost—left the earth with him—and came to navigate the airways like a veteran.

Without any effort upon her part—unless you count a winsome little person facing the camera with engaging simplicity as a tremendous drag—she has gradually captured the fancy of her country. If the country's "boy you can't forget," Charles Lindbergh, but knew it, his nose is decidedly, as the old saying goes, "out of joint," and has been for some time, since the whole world fell in love with his wife.

Probably today in his happiness he does know it, for all America is wishing joy and unending happiness to little Anne and her new baby.

And though it congratulates him with all its heart, even an air-hero father with his name already written on the pages of History, must be part of the background, and get but a small picture for himself today!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Athlete's Foot' All Too Prevalent Today

I receive hundreds of letters from my readers about foot disorders. Every one of us has at some time or another complained about aching, burning feet. Sometimes it is because we are wearing the wrong kind of shoe. More often however the discomfort has a more serious underlying cause.

DR. COPELAND

A doctor friend of mine originated the term "athlete's foot." This term is used in place of the old names of "tinea" "dhobie itch" and "ringworm," which have an unpleasant sound and often prevent the public from freely discussing the malady.

I am told that last year in a single university out West 54 per cent of the students were afflicted with ringworm of the feet. At least one-half of the adult population suffer with this trouble at some time or another.

Athlete's foot, or ringworm generally begins between the toes and spreads gradually along the sole and sides of the foot. The skin becomes reddish and scales, which are either dry or moist cover the affected part. When peeled off these scales leave an inflamed area. There is a slight itching.

The condition spreads slowly. For this reason it may run along for weeks or even months without attracting attention. But in the later stages the nails become brittle and yellow, and finally very much thickened and nearly black.

This ailment is caused by a vegetable fungus, commonly found on the floors of gymnasiums, swimming pools and bathing places. When the feet are moist, as following a swim or shower, the germ takes easy root. The infection can be easily transmitted from one member of a club or gymnasium to many other members of this particular group.

The great prevalence of this condition should be a warning to all those who have ringworm of the feet or nails. The proper treatment should be started immediately and the patient must remain away from swimming pools, gymnasiums or other places where there is an excuse for walking barefooted. Care should be exercised not to transmit the disease by means of towels or other articles.

Ringworm can be cured by the application of a mild antiparasitic ointment. Some cases require long continued treatment and the disease must be completely eradicated or the infection will appear in any uncured part.

Careful inspection will reveal the ailment to many who are unaware of its presence and proper treatment will prevent its transmission to others.

Madge Uses Diplomacy and Breaks Down Roderick's Defense

I was careful to invest my voice with friendliness and to smile genially at Roderick as I put the question to him concerning his wish to break up Junior's railroad cars.

"I s'pose you'll say I was a bum sport," he said at last a bit shamefacedly. "But, honest, his cars were not big ones like mine and they were awful old, and it would have made 'em look lots better, honest it would. It would have been a dandy bus, only Junior was so blasted snoopy he couldn't see it."

There was no anger in his voice now, only a vast regret, and in his face I saw the creative look which to any discerning parent or teacher is something to be hailed with joy and cherished with care.

Suddenly I saw the way out of all difficulties with this youngest and most truculent of the Harrison boys.

"Roderick," I said abruptly, "when you are at Aunt Harriet's have you a workshop where you can make things?"

His figure straightened and stiffened, and his eyes were suddenly alive.

"Workshop?" he repeated. Then he slumped into his former position. "Naw. I haven't any workshop. I have got a tool-box"—there was infinite contempt in his tone—"but the tools are no good—they're all sissy stuff. But Aunt Harriet is afraid I'll hurt myself with real ones."

"Would you like to have some real tools so that you could make real things?"

"Would I like?" he began—"Oh! Gee!"

"If I see that you have a few tools, and a place to work, will you prove to me and to Aunt Harriet that you know how to be careful?"

He looked at me almost wildly, then turned his head against the chair back and broke into wild, noisy sobbing.

My problem had dissolved into thin air. There remained simply a small boy, with nerves frayed to the breaking point. I leaned over and pulled him, half resisting, half yielding, into my arms and cuddled him as I do Junior.

This is where Junior cries things out, Roderick," I said softly, trying to ease any embarrassment he might feel. But the boy was beyond anything save the explosion of his held-in emotions, and he sobbed and shook and clung frantically to me until I began to be a little frightened at the result of my experiment.

"Aunt Margaret." The plaintive voice was almost a whisper.

"Yes, dear."

"I—I—want to tell you something."

I tightened my clasp a bit for I guessed what was coming.

"What is it, Roderick?" I encouraged as he hesitated.

"Junior wasn't to blame at all in that scrap we had," he said, the words tumbling over themselves in his eagerness for confession. "I told him I wanted to make the bus, and he said I couldn't, and we argued, and I called him names, and we argued—and then I snatched the cars and was going to tear them apart, and Junior snatched them back, and then I hit him. Of course, he had to hit me back."

His voice ran down while I reflected with smiling amusement that Roderick's confession was far too sweeping to be entirely truthful. I knew my own small boy's violent temper when he feels that he is the victim of injustice, and was sure that he was not the gentle martyr which Roderick's word picture had made him.

"So if you're going to lick anybody, I'm the one that ought to get it," he said.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

But, What About the Men?

Ten million young women want to be "ladies" again!

Ten million girls between the ages of 15 and 25 are tired of carrying their own grips, earning their own living, paying their own dinner checks and taxi fares—and, figuratively, kissing their own hands.

They "are going to fight for the privilege of being supported, coddled, courted and cherished," says Elizabeth Onativia, in the June Scribner's.

They are not sold on feminism. They would rather be married than President. They would rather have love and leisure than liberty and a pay-envelope. They don't want to "bring home the bacon"; they want to stay home and COOK it! They don't want to "live their own lives"—they want to be "somebody's darling!"

Well, it's come at last, just as I predicted. The chiffon sex has waked up to the fact that it would rather be Adam's RIB than his backbone. But it's waked up a little too late!

And now, what about the men? How can you make them love-minded and marriage-minded again? How can you teach the men of the younger generation to look upon a woman as something fine and delicate to be tenderly cherished?

It will be easy enough for women to go back to feminity and grace and gentleness and domesticity. They are already taking to ruffles and tucks and trailing skirts. A duck learning to swim will have nothing on a woman learning to cook and darn and sew on buttons and say "Yes, dear." To a normal girl being "feminine" is just second-nature.

* * *

But how can you inspire a boy, who has seen his mother or his big sisters bringing home a pay-envelope, to yearn to pay some woman's bills for life? How can you make him want to "cherish" some woman?

How can you make a boy who has let his sisters carry their own grips and hop in and out of a car, unaided, rush to offer his seat in the subway to some "delicate little woman?" Don't make me laugh!

* * *

How can you make a boy who has heard his big brothers brag about "necking the Janes" freely and promiscuously — how can you make that boy sigh to kiss a lady's hand and put a wedding-ring on it?

* * *

How can you teach a boy to feel chivalry and tenderness for a sex that has permitted itself to be mauled and slapped on the back for the last decade?

* * *

I feel sorry for those ten million girls who have inherited nothing but masculine indifference, hard work and loverlessness from the girls of the jazz-and-petting-party decade. They are going to have a hard job of it.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Powdered zinc, combined with water, makes a good paste for cleaning the eaves of the finger nails. It can be applied with an orangewood stick. Be careful to produce a straight, even line. Powdered pumice stone mixed with olive oil will dig out hangnails—if the fingertips are first soaked in warm soapsuds. Then the pointed scissors must be used.

Ears are an interesting study. They vary considerably in shape and outline. Woman has an advantage in being able to keep her ears curtained with tresslocks, since few women have pretty ones. Outstanding ears on babies should be bandaged at night; the best arrangement is a cap made of tape about one inch wide. Adult ears can be slapped back permanently by the plastic surgeon. He takes a tuck and two stitches and the deed is done.

Tiny red scales along the eyelids are evidence of a constitution that is not up to standard. Such a condition must not be disregarded. Often the eyes are weak, in need of glasses or special treatment. Any irritation of the lids will cause the lashes to fall.

There are two effective treatments for the skin that is thick, greasy and coarse—bathing and dieting. Hygienic measures are more important than cosmetics, though astringents and ice applications will help. The condition shows that the skin is not functioning properly. Soap, warm water and a bath brush, combined with muscular energy, will refine the texture of epidermis. By cutting down on sweets, starch and fats, sebaceous glands will have less work to do. Fruit and green vegetables aplenty! That's the beauty ticket. Go to it.

Correct Manners

Cards for the Debutante's Tea

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. At a debutante's tea, is it proper for a married woman to leave two of her own cards and three of her husband's cards?

2. If one is unable to attend, should the same amount be sent or would the joint card do as well?

3. Is it proper to use the joint card when calling instead of the individual cards?

4. If a married woman was calling on her hostess, her three daughters and the hostess's mother, who lives with her, should she just leave three of her own cards and three of her husband's cards?

5. At a wedding breakfast, luncheon and reception, should the bride and her mother leave their hats on?

JEAN.

1. It depends on how many names appear as sponsors for the tea. But if, as usual, the cards are issued in the names of the mother and father of the debutante, the number that you name is correct: two of the woman's cards, one for the mother and one for the debutante; and three of the husband's cards, one for the hostess, one for the debutante and one for the host.

2. Either is correct.

3. Yes.

4. Yes. Now we consider that three cards is the maximum number of any one card to be left.

5. Yes.

Fundamental Rules for Table Setting

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Will you please tell me the correct positions for silverware on the table?

2—Just how should an introduction take place?

3—Should one consider the age and sex when making introductions? M. A. S.

1—These are the fundamental rules for the placing of the silver at the places at table.

Place the silver up to the dessert course, that is, through the salad course.

Place silver sufficient for the menu that you are to serve and only that much. Do not place extra pieces for the guest to choose.

Place the forks on the left of the place. The only exception to this is the oyster fork, which is placed on the right, with the knives.

Place the butter spread on the bread and butter plate, the cutting edge down and the handle toward the right.

Place the silverpieces in the order in which the guest is to use them, so that he can begin with the piece farthest from the plate and proceed toward the plate.

Placing the silver pieces about an inch and a half up from the edge of the table, so that the service plate, tips of the handles of the silver and the edge of the napkin are in a straight line.

2. This is a very general question, but in making an introduction we should keep in mind that a gentleman is introduced to a woman, that an unmarried woman should be introduced to a married woman, an unmarried man, to a married man, a younger person to an older person, in cases where age is what should count.

For instance when we introduce a man to a woman, we say, "Miss Lady, may I present Mr. Gentleman?" or merely mention the names if we wish to make the introduction more informal. "Miss Allen, Mr. Worthington."

3. Yes—as I have indicated above.

Correct Costume Accessories

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Is it proper to wear short white kid gloves with a sleeveless dress and no hat when going to a hotel dance?

2. Is it proper to wear gloves and no hat with a dress that has sleeves? E. McM.

1. Long gloves are more appropriate with such a costume.

2. Since a dress with sleeves is an informal dress, we would wear a hat with it, and gloves.

Household Hints

Beef Cakes

One pound of round steak chopped, one tablespoon grated onion, one teaspoonful salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, two tablespoons fine bread crumbs, one-half cup hot milk.

Mix together until smooth. Form into little balls by rolling in the hand and then flattening. Powder lightly with flour, and fry in a little bacon over a slow fire. Do not fry too quickly, or the outside will become brown and crisp and the inside remain raw. Slow frying will cook the meat throughout. After a few minutes turn on each side so that all the cakes are browned evenly.

If desired, spread a little made mustard on each side of the beef cakes before dusting with flour. This peps up the flavor a good deal—if you like it that way.

THE BIG HOUSE

Butch! He'd understand, all right. He would.

"Hello, Butch!" Morgan called back.

"S-a-y! Is that you, Morgie?"

"It ain't my uncle, Butch."

"What happened, Morg?"

"Your knife—"

"My knife!"

"They planted it on me, Butch. I was breezin' it out on parole tomorrow. Hot break, eh?"

"Planted, Morg?"

"Yep."

"Who done it . . . who?"

"Oh, what's the diff—I'll take care of the heel in my own way. How is it down here—you know this is my first strip."

"Can't kick, Morg. Make the best of it, kid. Be happy! They can't break Old Butch's spirit, I say—be happy, boy! Don't let 'em worry you. Nothin' to worry about."

Butch's little speech was met with a series of groans from the others. Morgan laughed.

"And you can't kick on the angel cake they give you here, Kid. Why, they make stale bread taste good. Figger how much better off we are than them poor devils on the Bowery what can't even get that."

"Yes, there's one thing in our favor, Butch," called back Morgan, sadly, "things can't go much worse. It's one-way traffic."

. . . . . .

How does a man "doing a solitary" spend his time? He can't see. He lives in a little, damp space gutted from the solid stone. He is conscious of his imprisonment every second. Now he touches the unyielding rock on one side, now the heavy, steel-meshed door. The silence booms in his ears. His own voice makes him leap. His own flesh crawls when he touches it.

What a ghastly instrument of torture his own mind becomes in such existence! He knows neither night nor day. The swinish routine of prison life, even, is denied him. He is conscious of the loss of that which man has sought to build up for ages—system. Unseen vermin crawl within his clothes. Uncontrollable vermin crawl within his brain. His mind never ceases to race, yet it has nothing tangible to run upon. It is fed by fantastic, maddening sensations of the conscious and subconscious.

Conversation is almost impossible, as it has to be carried on in shouts. It is sapping, and in the last days or nights or whatever they might be called in a dungeon, Morgan was too far gone to talk much—or care much. The guard came once every 24 hours and threw in a piece of tough, sour, mouldy bread, and kicked in a pail of water. And then one day they opened his cell and he heard the gruff command:

"Come out!"

But he was lying on the hard stone, apparently too weak to move. His beard was long. His body was numb. He was almost pulseless. He knew nothing, felt nothing, saw nothing, cared nothing—this strong man of powerful physique and steel-trap mentality. He had done his trip.

GIANTS AND CUBS PICKED TO SURVIVE

IF YOU'LL TAKE John McGraw's opinion of the National League pennant race, the competition will narrow down eventually to a battle between New York and Chicago.

John McGraw

The veteran pilot says he thinks the closing stages of the campaign will find the Giants and Cubs fighting it out between themselves as the surviving contenders. He evidently feels that by the time the Pirates are able to put their full strength on the field they will be too far behind to make up the distance, and that the Cardinals are not likely to become as dangerous again as they looked for a while in May.

As for the Dodgers, McGraw says they have a valuable asset in Alfonso Lopez, one of the best young catchers he has seen in many years, and also own several hard hitters who have got to be respected, but he sees trouble ahead for the Brooklyn pitching staff. Hot weather is the obstacle he mentions. He believes it will seriously affect not only Dazzy Vance and Adolfo Luque, but also Watson Clark and Jim Elliott. He admits that the Dodgers have done very well, so far, but it is his personal belief that the club will not stand up as a real contender for the pennant.

DISCUSSING HIS OWN team McGraw says he is well satisfied with the present lineup and expects the pitchers to improve with regular work. He calls it a good club that ought to make a strong fight for the championship if misfortune does not intervene and sooner or later he looks for it to return to first place out of which he says it was tumbled by a chapter of accidents.

The Giant boss points out that the Cubs have been hit hard in losing Rogers Hornsby and in not being able to replace Hal Carlson, but thinks Clarence Blair is a real ball player who will do well enough in the second-base hole to keep the Bruins in the fight. He does not venture a prediction as to the outcome of the fight which he expects to develop at the finish between the Giants and the Cubs, but sees some advantage for his club in the fact that it will be playing at home during the greater part of September while the Bruins are on the road.

RECENT ANNOUNCEMENTS IN the Sun-Telegraph that another Pirate pitcher was soon to be dropped referred to Percy Lee Jones, and the release of the left-hander yesterday was only the carrying out of a step that had been contemplated for some time.

Percy Lee Jones

That the 15 other major league clubs thought no more of Jones than did the Pirate bosses was indicated by the failure of any of them to claim him at the waiver price. No satisfactory deal could be made with even a minor league club. This accounts for his unconditional release, as he was not a 10-year man and could have been sent to the minors without his consent.

THE PIRATE OFFICIALS assert that Jones, as the result of an old injury to his hurling arm, has not been in shape to pitch at any time since he came to the Pittsburgh club with a sum of cash in exchange for Burleigh Grimes. It was finally concluded that he could not regain the form that made him look like a helpful acquisition when the deal was made and that it would be only a dead loss to carry him longer. Jones was not the first choice of the Pirate bosses in the Grimes trade. They wanted Pitcher Bob Smith and took Jones only when the Boston club refused to give up the right-hander.*

ALL THAT THEY have left now out of the Grimes deal is the cash that was received from Boston, but at that they figure that they are losing nothing in dropping Jones as he was clearly unable to win here. In 18 2-3 innings pitched he allowed 25 hits and 14 earned runs.

With Jones following Jess Petty and Ralph Erickson, Larry French alone remains of the four southpaw flingers with whom the Rovers began the championship season.

LINES ARE OUT for some new pitchers to bolster the local staff, which has been reduced to six active members. It is reported that one of those called in may be Charley Wood, promising young left-hander placed by the Bucs with Wichita in the Western League.

Glenn Wright

Wood has been the slab sensation of that league thus far, winning nearly all of his games and piling up an impressive strike-out record. In one game he fanned 15. He also pitched a one-hit game, and it was claimed that the lone player making a hit off him should have been called out on strikes.

WITH GLENN WRIGHT back in the lineup, those Dodgers look more formidable than ever. They dropped their first two contests on the Western trip, but they have since won four games in a row, and if they are going to do any skidding on the present tour there certainly was no indication of an oncoming slump in their work here yesterday. With 10 straight hits in the sixth inning and two more by the first two batters in the seventh, they equaled the major league records for consecutive hits in an inning and consecutive hits in a game and with a total of 28 safeties they set a new major league mark for hits in a game this season. Cleveland had set the previous mark for 1930 at 25 hits, made on May 11, when the Indians defeated the Athletics, 25 to 7.*

THEY MAY POKE a lot of fun at Babe Herman, but there's no getting away from the fact that Brooklyn has in him one of the greatest natural hitters in the game. And four home runs in the last two games attest that Herman's drives are noteworthy for distance as well as for number.

Herman's big afternoon here yesterday boosted his average for the season to .398. He will give Hodapp, Terry and Klein a hard chase for the distinction of being the first major leaguer to make 100 hits this season, as he now has 94 to his credit.

IN SPITE OF all the warnings that had been given in advance, it happened anyhow. Primo Carnera and George Godfrey, not to be

PRIMO CANERA ABSOLVED OF BLAME

PHILADELPHIA, June 24 — (INS) — The license of George Godfrey, local Negro heavyweight, was revoked as a result of his fouling Primo Carnera, of Italy, in their bout here last night at a meeting of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission this afternoon.

Godfrey will receive half of his original $10,000 purse. At the same time Carnera was absolved of all blame for the fiasco and his purse of approximately $42,000 was ordered paid. Baron James F. Dougherty also was absolved of all responsibility for the manner in which the fight ended.

FOUL ENDS BATTLE

PHILADELPHIA, June 24 — (AP) — Another foul caused a stir today about heavyweight prize fighting.

This time it was George Godfrey, the giant Negro of Leiperville, Pa., who committed the foul. This time the fallen gladiator, writhing in anguish on the floor of the battle pit, was Primo Carnera, the Italian colossus, and again the faithful come to see a fight, booed and roared, and shouted "fake"—and went home talking to themselves.

The battle of the behemoths, the two largest men ever to face each other in a ring, missed duplicating the farcical ending of Jack Sharkey's duel with Max Schmeling for the heavyweight crown by less than two minutes.

BUCS-ROBINS GAME OFF

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

No baseball was played at Forbes Field this afternoon. The second game of the Robin-Pirate series was called off shortly before noon on account of wet grounds. The contest was moved back to Saturday, August 16, when it will be staged as part of a doubleheader.

Although the dual attractions are piling up on the Pittsburgh card, the rank and file of the players were in accord with the rest of today. Manager Ens has only six available pitchers and two of these are recruits, Glenn Spencer and Leon Chagnon. Moreover, doubleheaders are slated for Thursday and Saturday with the Quakers.

The Robins overwhelmed the Pirates yesterday as they scored a 19-to-6 success. Babe Herman crashed his sixteenth and seventeenth homers of the season in the debacle.

The invaders equaled the record of the National League for consecutive safe hits when they collected 12 safeties in the sixth and seventh rounds. The sequential rush started with two out in the sixth. Ten were included in this round before the last Robin was retired on a play at the plate. Two more hits were added in the seventh.

Heinie Meine was the principal victim of the onslaught. He was relieved by Leon Chagnon. Jumbo Jim Elliott was on the slab for the visitors.

The Pirate management announced that tickets for the Independence Day doubleheader with the Cubs were placed on sale at the various club agencies today.

PITT'S ENTRY HAS TOTAL OF 157

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Samuel M. Parks, Jr., of Pitt, continued to set the pace early today among the field of 97 players representing 26 colleges and universities in the national intercollegiate golf championship qualifying round at the Oakmont Country Club. Parks finished the last 18 holes of the 36-hole medal test with an 83, which, with his superb 74 of yesterday, gave him 157 and an advantage of three strokes over J. B. Barfield, of Alabama, who ranked next with 160. Barfield scored the best golf of the early morning starters, getting a 79, which went well with his 81 of yesterday.

Other possible qualifiers were Hugh Clines, of St. Xavier, who was third in the running with an 82 this morning for a 162; Paul Cook, of North Dakota State, who tallied 82 for 163; John S. Beal, of Union, 166, and Robert Enck, Ashland, 167.

LATE STARTERS

Many of the other favorites did not get started until late this morning and found the going pretty tough. The weather was ideal toward noon, but a storm was brewing in the western skies.

In registering his excellent 79, this morning Barfield was out in 37, even with par, his homeward play was only fair, he taking three 6s for a 42. The Alabaman stepped off with a birdie 4. His bad holes were the twelfth, fifteenth and eighteenth.

Parks in scoring his 83 today, was away off in his putting. Yesterday he couldn't miss one, but today, except on several holes, he found great difficulty in making them go down. Out in 42, with a pair of 6s to begin with, the Pitt star failed to much improve his game on the easier nine, although his birdie 4 on the ninth hole indicated he was ready to shoot in his usual consistent way. He was all of 41 coming back.

He got away to a pair of 5's coming in on the par 4 tenth and eleventh holes, needed a 6 on the par 5 twelfth, where he took three putts, caught a birdie 3 on the short thirteenth and then legged his way homeward. On the fourteenth he blew a putt and took 5 on that par 4 affair, trapped himself and then pulled an iron shot to take a 6 on the par 4 fifteenth, and missed the cup on the sixteenth green to go one over par for a 4.

SCORES BIRDIE 3

The seventeenth found him beating the Old Man again, with a birdie 3, and on the home hole, he recovered valiantly to get a 5, one over par, after his second was trapped to the left of the green and he dubbed one before getting out. His recovery was due to the only real putt he made on the entire round, a beautiful 30-footer.

Joe Royston, Jr., of Michigan, another Highland star, was the same as Parks on his outward trek, having 42, with a 6 on the Bass, who was wounded by his manager Phil Glassman, famous for his handling of Lew Tendler, weighed 129 pounds against 137 for his younger opponent. Benny's wife sat in a ringside seat and during the last round Benny worked his way into a clinch against the ropes and smiled down at her—that's how tough the fight was for him.

The main bout was preceded by the semi-final, in which Glen Beatty of McKeesport, 147, outboxed and outslugged Tommy Belmont, of Braddock, 149, in a wild eight-round battle. The judges agreed on this one but the decision was not unanimous. Referee Joe Keally scored it for Belmont.

Young Nance, of Swissvale, 133½, outpunched Johnny Warner, of Clairton, 132, in the six-round second bout. Warner received Referee Gruber's award after the judges had disagreed, Keally being for Nance and Ferris for a draw.

MORAN STOPS ANGELO

Frankie Moran, of Homewood, 133, subbing on short notice for L. S. Carpentier, knocked out Joey Angelo, of Braddock, 128½, in the second round of the opening bout. Angelo, being dropped several times in a series of wild exchanges and finally taking the full count.

Ferris served as a judge in all of the bouts and the referees Graybar and Keally alternated in acting with him. Ray Eberle was the announcer. Dr. M. R. Goldman, the commission physician, and A. C. Couch and Max Zeugschmidt, the timers. Zeugschmidt replaced Tommy Grant, of Rankin, who has been made Goat No. 3 for the Tony Herrera-Eddie Elkins fiasco last week, it being contended he should have rung the bell for the fourth round when Elkins was ruled unfit to continue. Grant says he received orders from the referee, acting for the commission, not to ring the bell and, because he followed them he is out in the cold.

Paul Pirrone, Cleveland welterweight, was introduced from the ring.

The boxing game received another black eye last night, when Primo Carnera, the Italian giant, won on a foul over George Godfrey, so-called Black Menace, in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-round bout before a crowd of 35,000 at the Phillies' Park, Philadelphia. Godfrey was leading up to the untimely finish and Referee Tommy Reilly declared the foul deliberate.

BOXER INJURED AT WHEELING SUCCUMBS

WHEELING, W. Va., June 24 (AP.)—Injured in a six-round boxing bout last night, Bruno Moraskey, 23, of Moundsville, fighting under the name of Young Bruno, died today in a hospital. Physicians said he died from concussion of the brain.

Moraskey was knocked down by Perry Bridges, of Warwood, his opponent, in the final round. Twice before in the round Moraskey had floored his opponent. Bridges got to his feet after the second blow and swung wildly at Moraskey's head. The blow knocked Moraskey to the floor. The final bell rang as the referee counted to four. Moraskey was awarded the decision.

Bridges was arrested and held in jail. John Ritz, promoter of the fight, was released on $1,000 bail.

Bridges was held under $1,000 bail on a charge of unlawful assault. The county prosecutor said he would file charges of involuntary manslaughter against Ritz.

Ritz will be given a hearing on a charge of unlawfully conducting a boxing match. Boxing matches to which admission is charged are illegal in West Virginia, but bouts are staged here under a club plan, club memberships being sold to those attending the matches.

In the 10-round main bout, Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, boxed his way to a victory over Henry Lenard, of Chicago. Dunn's superior work at close quarters left his opponent in a bad way at the finish.

Harry Harris, 170, of Bellaire, O., knocked out George Wilson, 178, Aaron, O., in a minute and a half of fighting in the first round of their scheduled six-rounder. A short right to the jaw sent Wilson down for the count.

Von Porat Collects $19,991 for Kayo

CHICAGO, June 24 (AP.)—Otto Von Porat, towering Norwegian heavyweight, was awarded $19,991.61 damages yesterday for running into W. L. (Young) Stribling's left hook in their match which lasted just two minutes and fifty seconds at the Chicago Stadium last Friday night.

New York, June 24 (AP.)—Lawyers today were drawing up legal agreements expected to pave the way for a fistic encounter between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Arthur Rouse, who has a 10 per cent interest in Schmeling's ring earnings, has agreed with Madison Square Garden, in charge of a group about $40,000 as his share of the purse for the postponed bout.

outdone by Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling proved themselves to be strictly modern heavyweight fighters and right up to the minute in the styles and fashions of the class by bringing their affair in Philadelphia last night to a close through the medium of a foul.

So the public headache continues and the fight game gets another black eye. The principals in last night's bout had a chance to booster waning confidence in the sport by fighting the thing out cleanly and decisively and proving that advance suspicions were groundless, but the ending, whether it was accidental or otherwise, only added to the damage done by Schmeling and Sharkey.

WHETHER THE AFFAIR had been arranged to wind up in a manner that would leave Carnera the winner without Godfrey's being actually beaten, or the Negro, believing that he could not win, took that way out to save bets that had been made with a foul provision, the fact remains that the chief question hasn't been satisfactorily answered. It still is to be proved that Carnera has the ability to win over a decisive route against a capable man. He was coming along in good style when the foul was committed, but there will always linger the suspicion that he was supposed to win last night in some manner. Otherwise the match never would have been arranged. There was too much at stake, for it is whispered that a match between Carnera and Jack Dempsey for next September in Chicago was all signed and sealed in advance of last night's affair, and probably it won't be long now until it is officially announced. It's a great little game.*

been plastered on three out of four of the last important heavyweight struggles. Carnera writhed and moaned in the manner of all fouled fighters, finally was raised from his agony by merciful unconsciousness and was dragged out of there winner on a foul.

Last night almost 40,000 customers paid close to $700,000 for the bout that was billed as the real test of Carnera as a fighting man. His lungo hitting against ninth and tenth raters in a tour throughout the country was ended. The charges of fake in his fight with the Negro Leon Chevalier in Oakland, Cal., were to be forgotten in the glory of a huge but genuine fighting man overcoming his first real opposition.

GODFREY TAKES LEAD

But unfortunately for boxing it failed to turn out that way. Godfrey, contributing an even 250 pounds to the quarter of a ton of struggling humanity in the park at the National League ball grounds, belted the vast Venetian dizzy in the first round, socked him solidly in the second, eased up in the third, and went ahead again in the fourth.

Godfrey was obviously firing badly when he let loose the low left hook after one minute, 13 seconds of the fifth.

While the crowd booed and cries of "fake" rolled down the ringside, critics up close were mixed in their opinions. Several believed that the match had been talked over before it was put on. Others could see nothing wrong. Dr. J. Webb Vaughn, of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission, said Carnera had been fouled, and incapacitated. Referee Tommy Riley called the foul without hesitation. Frank Wiener, chairman of the athletic commission, said there would be an investigation before the fighters were paid.

It was reported that Carnera was to receive 60 per cent of the gate receipts and Godfrey $10,000, but although there seemed to be some doubt as to who would pay the Negro.

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, June 24.—Your Uncle Nicholas, who got an honorary degree from Vassar last week, will give you some intricate statistics he has just figured out. Babe Ruth is making about five per cent of all the home runs in the big leagues. The umpires are making 100 per cent of the mistakes. The Red Sox pitchers are taking 37 per cent of all the shower baths in the league. The St. Louis ball park has enough empty planks to make 219 bowling alleys, and four out of five of the Phillies' pitchers ought to be Fuller Brush Salesmen.

WEST PENN FIRST HALF TITLE AT STAKE

HOMEWOOD TO BATTLE DORMONT

By TOM BIRKS.

Homewood and Dormont at Homewood playgrounds.

That is the tit-bit of the evening for local sandlot baseball followers to become enthused over. Beside the fact that two big clubs are locking horns, the first half championship of the West Penn League will also be at stake.

Memories of the olden days when crowds packed the popular East End stands should be brought back this evening when Straka and Fuchs, rival managers, make their pitching selections just before game time. Dormont has Shaeffer and Leo Carroll to shoot at Daly's hitters, while Joe Semler and Bimmy Steele can go to the mound for Daly. The game will be called at 6:30.

COLLEGIANS, FINTEX CLASH

In the Central League another worth while game will be staged at Dean Field, involving the first half championship when the Allegheny Collegians, under the leadership of Tommy Carson clash with Fintex. Both clubs are hot in the race for first half honors and the losing club will be practically eliminated.

In the Commercial and Industrial League, Reliance Life meets Carnegie Steel at Etna. The last game found the Insurance boys on the long end of a 5 to 4 score and this evening Manager Weber feels that Carnegie will reverse the score.

The Lincoln Civics will clash with the Hoffmans at Hartman Park, the Civics are going at a sensational clip and a good game should ensue. The Allegheny Collegians are looking for games abroad with the best clubs in the tri-state district. The 1928 City League champions are having a fine season. Managers wishing to book this attraction should call Cedar 0458-R, or write Tom Carson, Vincenton street, Pittsburgh.

N. S. CIVICS ROUTED

Book Shoe and Stowe turned in victories in the City League last evening, the Shoemen defeating the North Side Civics, 17 to 5, and Stowe walloping J. L. Thomas, 20 to 2.

In the Greater Pittsburgh circuit, Reliance Life defeated Verona, 3 to 1, and Homestead Acres downed Universal by the same count.

Reick-McJunkins walloped Carnegie Steel in the C and I League, 10 to 3, and in the North Side Twilight loop Immaculate Heart nosed out the T. H. Millers, 5 to 4.

The Crawfords won over the Etna Furnitures in an independent feature, 10 to 2, and Swissvale downed Duquesne Steel, 6 to 2.

WEST PENN NET FAVORITES WIN

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

A one-day recess for survivors in the forty-second annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships was in prospect today as a result of the drenching of the courts by a thunderstorm this morning. In the event that the playing surfaces respond to treatment by an afternoon sun, hostilities may be resumed this evening.

Sport Vignettes

Babe Herman and those crazy-with-the-heat Robins are in town. Help! Help! Says who? Says the Pirates and the fans .... One man who is not surprised that Max Schmeling is entering into negotiations for a return bout with Jack Sharkey is Hans Roberts, local welterweight boxer, who began his fistic career in Germany .... Hans and Max were boxing in the amateur ranks in the Vaderland at the same time and Hans won the middleweight and Max the light-heavyweight title in a tournament in which both competed .... "Max always was like that," Hans declares .... "Any time anyone defeated him he could not rest until he obtained a return bout and I do not recall any occasion on which he did not gain revenge." .... Hans, incidentally, does not believe Max fought his best fight against Sharkey recently and agrees with many critics that the attempt to change his style before the battle contributed to the German's bad showing up to the time he was declared the winner on a foul .... "Max never was a boxer nor an aggressive fighter," Hans says .... "All of the time I knew him he was a good counter puncher. His style was to circle about with his right hand cocked and let his opponent carry the fight to him .... I understand conditions were exactly the reverse when he boxed Sharkey. Then he was rushing Sharkey and naturally was a mark for Jack's counters. Permit me to predict that if they meet again he will make Sharkey chase him and will do plenty of damage to Sharkey with his own heavy right-hand counters." .... That's a good sizeup of the situation. Fighting a counter fight against Paulino, last fall, Schmeling impressed as a 90 per cent better ringman than he was against Sharkey .... Another point that Roberts, who in Germany fought under his real name, Rieke, makes is that Max is a slow starter and that if he can get safely past a half-dozen rounds against Sharkey, as he figures to do boxing as he did against Paulino, he will start to come on and begin to assert himself .... This statement also is borne out by the facts .... Schmeling was fighting a suicidal battle against Sharkey, whereas, against Risko and Paulino, earlier, he was slow to get into his stride, but finished each bout with a rush that brought him victory .... Roberts, by the way, is ready now, following a layoff that has enabled him to get a new grip on himself, to begin a new campaign which he hopes will re-establish him as the card he was before he began to slip during the past winter season .... Babe Phelps, the star young pitcher of the Brooklyn Robins, is a "find" of Nap Rucker, former southpaw ace of the old Brooklyn Trolley Dodgers, now a scout for Robbie .... He caught Nap's eye while pitching for the Jacksonville (Fla.) club managed by Rube Marquard, the old left-hand flipper of the Giants.—HARRY KECK.

ninth hole. His start on the second nine, two 5's did not make it appear he was going to improve much, but he felt certain he would be able to get a low enough score which would match his 85 of yesterday to qualify high.

Royston's card going out: 4 5 5 5 5 3 5 4 6—42.

Few of the other earlier finishers appeared to stand a chance of playing among the lucky 32. It was thought that a 36-hole card of 168 might get under the wire.

COOK SCORES 82

Paul Cook, of North Dakota State, struck an 82 this morning for a grand total of 163, and he will unquestionably qualify. John S. Beal, of Union College, should have little to worry about with his total of 166, with an 84 today and 82 yesterday, and the same may be said for Robert Enck, of Ashland College, who scored 85-82—167.

R. H. Crowe, of Illinois, who played with Sam Park, Jr., appears to be just outside the fold with his 86-84—170, while John Butts, of Stanford, is out of the picture with his 97-94—177. Forrest Lee Andrews, of Rice, was one worse than yesterday with 90-89—179, and Rudolph Rothernberg, of Lafayette, one better with 89-90—179.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 24.—Influenced by relative scant response which the Liverpool market paid to yesterday's advance here, Chicago wheat values underwent early setbacks today. Cheap offerings of United States wheat abroad were reported in Liverpool dispatches and there were also advices of further timely rains benefiting crops in Canada. Starting ½@1c off, Chicago wheat afterward underwent additional declines. Corn oats and provisions were also easier, with corn opening unchanged to 1c down and subsequently showing setbacks all around.

Downturns that exceeded 2c a bushel, as compared with yesterday's finish, brought about little or no indication of rallying power at some stages today in the wheat market here. Meanwhile scantiness of demand, not only from exporters but also from millers, was illustrated by reports that Canadian millers had reduced the price of bran to the lowest point ever known. There were also reports of uninterrupted favorable conditions for harvesting of domestic winter wheat and for growth progress throughout the spring crop belt.

Facts Showing U. S. Not Going to the Bow-Wows

By B. C. FORBES

THE best [illegible]

It looks just like a second ary reaction.

"But it all seems so far away to me how the stock market and its doings

Incidentally [illegible] was [illegible] ception [illegible] fered [illegible] Elisabeth [illegible] is opening a school for young children. And what's use of an automobile would you [illegible] ambassador was using? One of these so-called station buses, more like a wagon than a regular pleasure car. There is no more democratic man in America than Dwight Morrow.

A FEW heartening facts:

T. A. Goodfellow, vice president of Pacific States Savings and Loan Company, San Francisco, says that its resources last week reached $65,116,609, the highest total ever touched by any of America's 13,000 building and loan associations. Growth since January 1929 has been $38,108,732, of which less than $10,000,000 has been due to consolidation. Since last November 1 resources have increased $12,715,307. He adds:

"This rate of gain continues unabated. President Robert S. Odell credits this remarkable growth to progressive management, customer ownership and advertising. Ours is the first California financial institution to lead the field nationally. It marks another step in the rise of the West as a financial power."

JOHN S. SMITH, president of the Smith Motor Car Corporation, New York, states:

"Since January 1, 1929, more than 350,000 Chevrolet 6-cylinder trucks have been sold, an extraordinary record. Every indication points to a continuation of this success in the months to come."

THE GIRDLER CORPORATION, Louisville, Ky., sends this:

"President Walter H. Girdler announces additions which will increase production of Tube-Turns, Inc., by 60 per cent, necessitated by an increase of 271 per cent in sales for the first five months of this year. The plant is operating 24 hours a day.

THE FORT WORTH Chamber of Commerce, of which Walter B. Scott is president, tells this column that a construction program involving approximately $60,000,000 is under way in Fort Worth and Tarrant County, Texas.

For road and bridge improvements $10,000,000 is being spent. The Texas and Pacific Railway, which recently completed new Fort Worth yards and shops costing $6,000,000, has started building a 13-story passenger station and office building. The city is spending $2,000,000 on grade separations, $2,500,000 on street improvements, a municipal airport and a new central fire station, a city water supply system (for 1,000,000 people) and irrigation work are costing $6,500,000.

Important building projects are unusually numerous—office buildings, churches, industrial plants, a department store, a stadium, municipal market, a casino, etc., are under way. $2,600,000 has been made available for a federal building and post-office and a $1,000,000 Masonic temple is to be started early in the fall.

Residential construction has averaged $7,000,000 a year, yet vacant residential property is the smallest in 10 years. Public utility expenditures in Fort Worth will exceed $2,000,000.

Endicott Johnson Corp Will Earn Dividend In First Half

Although sales of Endicott Johnson Corporation for the first six months undoubtedly will be substantially below the $31,962,227 for the first half of 1929 it is likely to be much better than the $4,836,065 of only 10 cents a share on the 400,000 combined shares outstanding after preferred dividends in the same period last year. It is understood the common dividend at a rate of $2 a year is being earned and the preferred for the six months will be covered.

Steel common aspired to the position of leadership on the rally which followed the early fall in prices yesterday. The industrial bell weather had been driven down to within less than 3 points of the November low before reversing its trend, but once the decline had been arrested the rally was both vigorous and swift. Naturally steel has been one of the favorite targets of the bears during the past week or more in an effort to drive it through the 1929 low. Estimates of the corporation's June quarter net are now commencing to appear and while net particulars runs by comparison with last year are not especially unfavorable. Most commentators are calculating net will run slightly under that of the March period when $5.44 a share was shown. In the second quarter of 1929 with about 1,000,000 shares less outstanding than at present the corporation reported net equal to $6.66 a share.

For several days past there have been frequent reports of buying on a substantial scale by some of the leading life insurance companies. Such operations are never given much in the way of publicity of course but it is interesting to recall that officials of the Sun Life Assurance Company went on record here a short time back as predicting that within a year or two it would be realized that 1930 had provided splendid buying opportunities in seasoned investment shares; buying by such insurance companies if in progress as reported should reflect in the best grade of stocks but after all such buying would doubtlessly be executed on a scale down.

It is not surprising that fears and uncertainties exist following business contraction, says the Harvard Economic Society in its bulletin predicting an early business recovery. There is often a stabilization interval of considerable length, says the bulletin, and during such interval much of business news consists of disheartening reports covering operations during preceding period of liquidation. We believe business has for some time been in such a period of stabilization. "Continued accumulation of stocks for investment," says the society, "is a clear sign that present prices are not too high according to long-run appraisal of prudent investors." The society looks for easy money to persist through 1930 at least.

Traffic on New Haven Railroad in May showed about the same relative decline from last year as it did in April, and the earnings figures to be published in a few days are bound to reflect a corresponding reduction in gross, although net railway operating income due to cut in expenses should make a relatively better showing in comparison with May 1929. There is little encouragement to be derived from the fact that business recession has not been further accentuated since April. Cars loaded on the New Haven lines for the five weeks ended May 31 totaled 77,922 against 91,330 in the corresponding period last year, a reduction of 13,408, or 14.6 per cent. Evidently the inward movement of freight has not fallen off to the same extent as carloads for the same period showed a reduction of only 9,513 from the corresponding period last year, or 10.9 per cent.

A long period of easy credit is in prospect, according to views of the leading bankers. Commercial borrowings are small, because of the slack industrial and business conditions. Buying in Wall Street also has been limited, and the supply of funds has been more than sufficient to supply the demand for securities. Funds are therefore a drag on the market at the moment, and there is no sign of any change in this situation in the near future. In the long run, the ease in credit should help toward a recovery in business and the market.

International Nickel Exports Decrease

MONTREAL, June 24.—Exports of nickel by International Nickel Company for the first five months of this year, while $978,230 lower than in the same time last year, are up $1,475,276 over the combined exports of International Nickel Company and Mond Nickel for the first five months of 1928.

May exports of nickel ore were $1,239,938, against $349,099 preceding month and $417,584 in May, 1929. Fine nickel exports for month totaled $958,116, against $1,020,384 in April and $1,432,531 in 1929 month; nickel oxide $78,481, against $28,478 in April and $269,181 in 1929 month.

Clearing House Cuts Interest Rates

NEW YORK, June 24.—Reflecting current credit conditions and the recent reduction to 2½ per cent in the rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, the New York Clearing House today reduced the maximum interest rate payable on deposits by member banks.

The rate on deposits payable within 30 days and on credit balances payable on demand to banks, trust companies and private bankers, excluding mutual savings banks, was reduced from 2 to 1½ per cent. This rate also applies to deposits of non-banking institutions. The rates on time deposits and deposits of mutual savings banks were cut 1 per cent each, making the new rates 2 per cent.

In the opinion of many bankers action of the clearing house was overdue and became imperative. They pointed out that since the old rates went into effect March 26 last, there have been two reductions in the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, carrying that rate down from 3½ per cent to 2½ per cent, the lowest rate in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's 16 years of existence.

Man's Most Precious Sense

Of the five senses, man considers his sense of sight most precious, most essential to his comfort and happiness. But, precious as it is, the organs of this sense are delicate, frail, and easily injured.

The optician is the guardian of our sight. He it is who measures the errors committed by our eyes and prescribes corrective lenses. He grinds the lenses with the utmost care and scientific accuracy and makes available to us the latest scientific optical instruments. To the optician we owe the comfort and relief from fatigue that comes with properly fitted glasses. Humanity owes him much because he is educating the public to the need of corrective glasses for deficient eyesight.

The Mellon National Bank extends a cordial invitation to the opticians of Pittsburgh to become depositors and make use of the Bank's facilities in transacting financial business.

BUSINESS CAN HELP TO CURB RADICALISM

Unemployment Insurance Would Do Much Toward Eliminating Discontent

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, June 24 — The present period of economic transition is hardly an opportune time for organized business to engage in witch burning and heresy hunting.

Yet this is apparently what it was invited to do by Bernard F. Wredock, special resident representing the electric utilities before the Federal Trade Commission, who appeared before the National Electric Light Convention in San Francisco. Brandishing out-of-date statistics with which to attack mosquitoes, Mr. Wredock referred to a number of relatively trivial radical organizations and personalities.

Characterizing the radical group this convention said:

"The people who complain of your service are not your customers. The complaints come from people outside the communities you serve. They come from groups in distant places and compose an unholy alliance seeking to advance their political and economic theory and retard and eventually destroy your business. A correct estimate of the number of people in this unholy alliance is conservatively placed at 4,000, most of whom are narrow minded and wide mouthed, and none of whom has the public interest at heart."

MORE URGENT PROBLEMS

It seems to me that Mr. Wredock's remarks are ill timed for organized business at this period of economic transition. Has more urgent and more serious problems to grapple with. Big business may as well recognize that the recession is going to make for political and social discontent. As one statistician remarked, radicalism is the ratio between what you expect and what you get. Unemployment, economic insecurity, farm depression and allied symptoms of the recession phase of the business cycle promote discontent and incidentally politically the party in power tends to suffer irrespective of whether it is in the slightest to blame. Accordingly we must expect an interruption temporarily, we hope, of the era of political good feeling which graced the prosperous Coolidge administration.

Organized business will curb radicalism by eliminating the major causes for discontent which radicals exploit rather than by attempting to swat radicals over the heads with clubs. The working man wants most of all economic security, and some kind of insurance against unemployment. The General Electric Company, which is managed by executives of broad social vision, is showing leadership in a plan for taking care of unemployed. By vote of 60 per cent of the workers, individual plants may inaugurate the program. Participating workers contribute 1 per cent of their pay for a period of three years, and the company gives an equal amount. The fund is available for loans and for unemployment payments.

BUSINESS CAN HELP

Organized business can also curb radicalism by joining in an intelligent effort to flatten out the curves of the business cycle through a program of stabilization, such as the committee on recent economic changes, working with the National Bureau of Economic Research, advocated.

Incidentally, some long headed observers in the financial district believe a restless desire for political change in 1932 might make it possible to turn over the keys of the White House to Owen D. Young, Democrat.

In the present blurred business picture a reported improvement in demand in the wool goods industry is a relatively bright spot. Sales of men's clothing have displayed an upward tendency and raw wool prices have recently given indications of reaching a stabilized level. Such improvement as may take place follows a period of months of sub-normally low wool consumption.

G. C. Murphy Company Sales Gain

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

STEADY EXPANSION IN SALES and earnings has marked the operations of the G. C. Murphy Company, operating a chain of stores retailing merchandise priced from five cents to $1. In 1912 the organization had 18 stores with annual sales of $370,616. Last year the number of stores was increased to 153, with total sales of $15,726,651.

Operators of chains of five and ten cent stores have made outstanding records as depression proof organizations. In the first five months of this year the Murphy Company reported sales of $5,812,096. This represented an increase of 11 per cent over the corresponding months of 1929. In each year since 1912 the company's sales have shown a substantial increase over the preceding year. The company has paid cash dividends on its common and preferred stocks in each year since 1916.

The expansion in sales has not resulted from the addition of new units alone. In 1927 the average sales per store were $89,768. In 1928 the average increased to $91,114 and in 1929 it increased to $102,789. The average profit per store also increased from $4,415 in 1927 to $5,340 in 1928 and to $6,174 in 1929.

To Open New Stores

TODAY 159 STORES are operated in Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Connecticut, Indiana, New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Michigan and Maryland. By the end of 1930 the number of stores will be increased to 167.

About September 30 the largest chain store in this city will be opened by the company at Fifth avenue, Diamond and Market streets. It will have over 72,000 square feet of floor space.

Persistent gains in earnings have accompanied the expansion in sales. In 1926 net profit after depreciation, Federal and State taxes, available for interest was $398,626. This was increased to $605,581 in 1927, to $694,469 in 1928 and to $954,309 in 1929. Further expansion in earnings may be expected with the opening of additional sales units now being planned.

New Financing

TO RETIRE ALL INDEBTEDNESS except current accounts payable but not due and to provide for expansion, an issue of $2,000,000 of 10-year 6 per cent sinking fund gold debenture bonds is being offered through the Bank of Pittsburgh N. A.

Annual interest requirements on the bonds will be $120,000 as compared with average earnings for the past three years of $751,453. During the past three years earnings averaged more than six times interest requirements on the new issue. In 1929 charges were earned eight times.

Financial Position

A STRONG CURRENT FINANCIAL position is indicated by the balance sheet of March 31, 1930, after giving effect to the new financing. Current assets of $4,700,300 were 6.8 times current liabilities of $688,070. Cash amounted to $1,588,530. The company will be required to maintain net current assets equal to 150 per cent of the amount of the bonds outstanding.

With total assets of $9,300,176 the company has $3,000,000 of 8 per cent preferred stock and 149,938 shares of common stock outstanding.

The latest addition to the chain of stores was opened at Washington, Pa., last week. Another store will be opened at Harrisburg, Pa., within a short time.

THE OFFICE WIFE

By FAITH BALDWIN

Eaton Realizes That He Loves His Secretary

CHAPTER XVII.

This was the realization that Eaton took home with him that evening, with which he must face Linda that he had fallen in love with his secretary; that she had become necessary to him as a woman; that he wanted her—wanted her—and could not have her. Or—could he?

It had been so long since this surge and sweep of emotion had caught him—even in his boyish love for Linda (little had it been this mature necessity)—that he was bewildered and staggered and utterly incapable of searching the situation back to its inception. After a miserable evening and a sleepless night he tried to tell himself that it would pass; that it was a temporary if strong attraction based upon propinquity, upon Anne's own charm and appeal and brought to ephemeral flowering by their close companionship at Hot Springs; by the moment in which recklessly he had held her in his arms.

It could not last, for her sake for Linda's and for his own. The situation would become intolerable. It was something that he must stamp out root and branch; something which Anne must never guess even exists.

He must go on as if this devastating thing never had happened. Any other solution was impossible.

He tried to keep himself from speculating upon the probable nature of her regard for him, but to do so was humanly impossible. He was forced to the lover's inevitable wonder. Does she care? Can she care? If so, how much?

Many Problems

And if she cared, if he knew that definitely, would it change his attitude?

Had it been anybody but Anne—a woman working under his business protection, a woman he saw every day in the now artificial environment of his office—had it been someone whom he had met outside, would his deliberated attitude have held? Might he not then, under such different circumstances, try to find out if she cared for him, and if she did forget Linda, forget the world, take upon himself the secret responsibility for a woman's happiness? And if he did so and found that the attraction held, would he not do the honest thing and ask Linda to divorce him?

The age-old problem ate at him—should he sacrifice himself and another for Linda's sake, or take happiness for himself and that other at Linda's expense?

But Anne was — Anne. Not the sort of woman to whom one offered an illegal relationship, not the sort of woman to accept that offer. Yet if she cared for him? And she was sophisticated, not a child.

But no, the thought was impossible. He pushed it into the background of his mind that was now like a squirrel cage. All the arguments, all the speculations, all the wondering and wretchedness went on round and round unceasingly. He contradicted himself a thousand times, he set himself a hundred problems. And reached no other conclusion save the first, which was that he never must let her know.

Becomes Very Formal

It couldn't last, he told himself stubbornly. He dreaded seeing her again, and he longed for it intolerably.

In the office his attitude toward her was schooled enough. But the memory of their embrace remained, and so the atmosphere had changed. He became markedly formal toward her more so than he had ever been. Yet an undercurrent remained. Each knew it.

The good resolution remained, but seeing her every day and so deeply aware of her physical presence he was able eventually to delude himself with a masculine disregard for danger. So long as he didn't speak, so long as he gave no further sign, he harmed no one and he would have the oblique happiness of seeing her. Otherwise he would have to let her go and for that sacrifice he had neither strength nor heart.

In the late autumn of that year came Indian summer. Anne took this precious warmth into her blood and the cool heady wind into her veins. She worked and played wholeheartedly and loved and was happy as never before in her life. For once having faced her love and admitted the impossibility of its fulfilment she actuated herself to living in the moment.

Occasionally she went to Kathleen's. She continued her casual acquaintance with Dolly Davis, hating her time. Dolly and the shoe-eyed Georgie rarely came to Kathleen's because of the older woman's violent jealousy. But when Anne met her now and then she was as brimful with intimacies as ever, as confident that some day Georgie would marry her.

Dolly a Widow

"He's all for this companionate marriage stuff," she told Anne one night quite seriously. "But I say what's the use of going into a thing and saying beforehand it won't be successful? I was married once. Did I tell you darling?" He was a truck bicycle rider on the big time circuit—but he had more wheels in his head than on his machine. I was going to divorce him, but what with one thing and another I forgot it, and he killed himself a couple of years ago doing a brand-new stunt. So I'm an honest-to-goodness widow. But, as I was saying to Georgie, the Lord knows marriage is a big risk nowadays, and there's no sense in admitting it when you stand up before the judge. That's bound to make it happen."

Anne controlled her features with an effort. Companionate, marriage and Georgie!

Ted O'Hara was present at this particular party—and Ted was unpleasantly impressed. Anne had asked him to take her, as it seemed wiser to bring her own escort.

When they had left earlier than the others, and were driving home:

"I wish you'd keep out of that crowd," he complained.

"It's Kathleen's."

"What of it? It hasn't improved her."

"I'd rather you didn't criticize her, Ted."

Talk in Office

"Well, she's pretty independent. She won't thank you for chaperonage. The way she plays up to that sickening little fool—what's his name?—George—"

"Please, Ted!"

"Don't get miffed. It doesn't matter to me what she does. But I didn't like your talking so much to that Davis woman. She isn't your sort."

"Ted, what I do and with whom I talk is not your affair."

"Marry me," implored Ted suddenly, and let me make it my affair. I tell you, Anne, I'm worried about you."

Anne chuckled. She couldn't help it. "Of all your proposals, this one is the most ridiculous."

"I'm glad you think so." The fact is, you're working too hard. Eaton has a nerve keeping you overtime, taking your Sundays and your evenings."

"It's part of a job which I intend to keep," Anne told him.

"Well, there's talk in the office. I'm only telling you for your own good." Ted broke out suddenly and then cursed himself silently and heartily. He hadn't meant to say anything.

Anne flung around at him, her face white. "Talk? About me and Mr. Eaton?" she asked incredulously, not evading the implication.

"Yes, if you will have it. I know there's nothing in it but it does look funny. You're with him so much."

Don't Want Marriage

Betty Howard had tried to warn Anne a few days previously. But she had been tactful to the point of incoherence. Now Anne twisted her hands in her lap and said steadily:

"Miss Andrews held the same position, did much the same work. I never heard any gossip about her."

That she thought was not strictly true. A number of people had commented on the other woman's obvious devotion to her chief.

"Oh, be yourself!" advised Ted. "Miss Andrews was Andrews. You're 25 to her 40. And you're so pretty, you're beautiful to me," he added with a rather touching sincerity. After a moment he went on: "It makes all the difference, you see, the sort of girl you are and the sort of dried-up old maid Andrews was. Can't you see?"

"I suppose so. It's absurd of course," Anne replied.

"Oh, Teddy!" She turned on him exasperated. "I don't want to be taken out of it. I want to stay. I don't want to marry any one. I don't want to marry you."

"Then there's some truth in it after all," muttered Ted sullenly.

"In what?"

"That the chief's in love with you," he accused.

Ted, that's idiotic. He doesn't know I exist except as his secretary. He—he has the loveliest wife, he's crazy about her." Anne answered with no real conviction.

Truth Angers Anne

"Well, you're off your head over him then!" commented Ted.

"I—am—not!" she managed to lie, defiantly.

But terror seized her, flooded her; the blood rose in a warm tide, flooding her whiteness to scarlet.

"You must be. No woman," said Ted doggedly, "gives herself as you do, spends herself, sacrifices herself for—a job. The only reason a woman drives herself all day and half the night is for a man."

"You're a generation back," Anne told him. But the brutality of his conclusion had not escaped her. Was it true? Was it only her love for Eaton which made the difficult work so easy for her? "Drive quickly—and get me home. I'm tired. And if you say another word to me about this—this nonsense, I'll never come out with you again!"

Home finally, and in bed, she tried not to think of what Ted had said. "Not for a job . . . but for a man."

She tried to picture another man in Eaton's place, another chief. To her horror and bewilderment, she found she no longer could visualize the job without the man she loved.

She was illogically, femininely angry at Ted for having told her the truth. So she did not see him for a time, but went to Jim's instead; helped Sara entertain the friends who dropped in at all hours. And saw Kathleen, who was rehearsing for another piece.

But Kathleen was not as open with her as formerly; and Anne, remembering Ted's caustic comments, began to worry. She saw that the younger girl's interest in Dolly Davis' sleek-haired shadow was growing—and becoming obvious. And it alarmed her.

She spoke of it to Eaton one day when he asked about Kathleen, simply because the need was in her; she had to tell somebody.

"I'm worried about her," she told him.

"Why? The stage nowadays," said Eaton, "is as safe a profession as any."

Wants to Help Her

"I know it. That's what I argued when she made up her mind to take it up, and mother and father were against it. But she knows the wrong people."

"What kind of people?" Eaton asked, instantly seizing on any pretext to keep her talking to him.

"Oh, not the girls she lives with, really, though there's one I don't like much. But—you met Dolly Davis the other night at the club. Do you remember her? There's a man—he wasn't there that night — he and Dolly—" Anne shrugged, left the implication open.

"He's a wretched little beast, sleek as a seal," she went on; "he's been paying attention to Kathleen. I've warned her, but she laughs at me. She announced recently that she was planning to leave the chorus and dance with this creature at some night club."

"Perhaps she'll change her mind."

"I don't know, but it does

DAILY TRUE STORY

Watchful Wilbur

"I've been watching Wilbur," said Uncle Ben Otis, "and he's getting altogether too interested in that pretty girl at the cigar counter."

"I'll have her fired," Herb Otis, Wilbur's cousin, promised.

The pretty girl at the cigar counter was Julie Ranlett. Herbert Otis kept his eyes open after this. Wilbur Sargent did seem to hang around the cigar counter quite a lot. Miss Ranlett was nice and polite to him but Herbert had to admit that she seemed to realize her position as mere cigar counter girl and did not attempt to take advantage of Wilbur.

However, Wilbur, who wasn't permitted to smoke because of his frail condition, hovered about the counter a great deal and seemed to have fallen for the girl.

Herbert saw Wilbur buying a box of cigars. He promptly went over to him.

"Look here Wilbur, you know you mustn't smoke—doctor's orders—not good for you." He turned to Julie.

"Take them back, give him back his money, we have to be very careful of his health—"

"I wish you'd go away, Herb," Wilbur said. "The doctor didn't forbid me to buy cigars or to give a box of them to a friend."

"What friend? Cigars cost money—"

"Whose money?"

"Of course, if you don't smoke them—who are they for, Wilbur?"

"A friend." He turned to Julie. "Never mind wrapping them up, Julie."

He paid her and departed. Julie Ranlett eyed Herbert Otis suspiciously.

"We have to watch Wilbur, he isn't long for this world—he's an own cousin, a sort of ward, we feel responsible for him and we don't mind the expense, it's a sort of family duty," he explained.

"He doesn't appear to need watching. I think he's a nice boy."

Owns Cigar Counter

"He isn't strong, but he's decent and gentlemanly. It's too bad he isn't any stronger, Mr. Otis. And what do you mean about expense? Is he a poor relative—an object of your charity?"

Julie Ranlett felt sorrier than ever for Wilbur Sargent.

Trying to be nicer than ever to Wilbur made the watchful cousin Herbert more suspicious than ever. He feared that the girl was wise as to the real financial status of Wilbur and would hook him into matrimony. That would be a calamity.

And so both Herbert and his father sought the hotel manager to get him to fire the cigar counter girl.

"Even if I could, I wouldn't," the manager told them. "It's difficult to get a nice girl for the cigar counter—most of them aren't the right sort. As a matter of fact, Miss Ranlett owns the cigar counter concession here and I have nothing to say about whether she remains or goes away."

Wilbur made Julie a present of a bracelet shortly after this.

His uncle knew about it at once. He and the family lawyer handled Wilbur's big inheritance.

Sam Otis and his son, Herbert, talked it over.

"Wilbur's a weak fool. This Julie what's-her-name, with her pretty face, will have him marrying her if we don't watch out!"

His father nodded. They understood fully what that meant.

Wilbur Sargent had been left an immense fortune by his paternal grandfather. The old man figured that when Wilbur was 25 he would have enough sense to handle it.

Wilbur hadn't been strong since childhood. During the last few years he had been getting worse. Doctors said there wasn't much chance for him.

Grandfather's own lawyer and Wilbur's uncle on his mother's side of the house were to handle the fortune until he attained twenty-five. If he should die before that time all the fortune would go to distant relatives of the old grandfather and not a penny to the Otises, father and son.

But if poor Wilbur could cling to life until he was twenty-five and inherited all of this fortune, then it would go wherever he willed it—and Uncle Ben and Cousin Herbert would look out for that part of it!

Guard Against Marriage

To give the lawyer credit, he had no knowledge of the plans of the uncle and cousin. He took it for granted that their constant watchfulness over Wilbur was due entirely to kind-heartedness.

They spared no expense—of course the money coming from Wilbur's inheritance. The best of doctors seemed to agree that poor Wilbur would never live to be thirty.

Cousin Herbert reported this to his father when the doctor had told him.

"With us being the only logical heirs, Dad," he said, "now wouldn't it be just too bad if Wilbur popped off in a year or so after his next birthday."

The old man went a little further.

"Just as soon as he comes into all this money and I get his will fixed up, that's going to be easier for us—we won't have to be so watchful."

Herbert understood and grinned.

"Of course, he will be his own boss and if he goes playing around and dissipating and hastens the inevitable, we can't do a thing."

"But suppose he gets married?"

"Ouch!" Herbert scratched his chin in deep thought.

And so when it seemed that poor half-dead Wilbur was getting too fond of the pretty cigar-counter girl, Julie Ranlett, and when they found that they couldn't get her fired, they decided on a trip.

They went to Bermuda and they watched over Wilbur every moment.

Wilbur's twenty-fifth birthday arrived and he was still in the land of the living.

They came back from Bermuda and when Herbert learned that the little cigar-counter girl was gone from the hotel, they went back there.

Poor Wilbur was terribly disappointed because Julie had gone.

And, through the clever influence of his uncle and cousin, he made just the right sort of a will—for them.

"Now," said dear cousin Herbert to his father, "just keep him from getting married—he seems to be getting weaker all the time."

Camping Trip

"True enough — very sad," said Uncle Ben, without cracking a smile.

In August, Uncle Ben and Cousin Herbert, still watching over Wilbur and grafting on him, decided that a trip to the Canadian woods would benefit him.

Herbert had talked with two doctors about it—doctors who knew all about Wilbur. They had told Herbert to keep Wilbur quiet and they had said that the hardships of a camping trip in Canada would be fatal.

Herbert explained this to his father and said, "I think we ought to take him on a camping trip up in Canada."

"By all means—by all means," his father agreed.

And so they got Wilbur somewhat enthused, although he didn't enthuse over much of anything in those days. He spent a lot of time popping in and out of various hotels, hoping that he would find pretty Julie Ranlett in charge of the cigar counter, but he never did.

By this time Wilbur had a quiet home down on Long Island and his uncle and cousin lived there to help care for him. Wilbur got bored with them, but admitted that he appreciated the way they watched over him and tried to help him regain his shattered health.

So they went up into Canada on the camping trip.

Wilbur got pretty tired taking the walks around the portages, and when they went into camp in a tumble-down, leaky log cabin and sent the guide back, he didn't like it very much.

It was too much roughing it.

One cloudy day, when the barometer indicated that a storm was coming, they went up the chain of ponds in two canoes. It began to drizzle as they were fishing. Herbert and Wilbur were in one canoe and his father in another. The old man remained around a point of land. Herbert went ashore to try and find some ground worms for bait, he said. He promptly hiked through the brush to the lower cove, was picked up by his father and they put up stream to a shelter.

Saved by Julie

If Wilbur pulled through this exposure they could explain how they all got lost and searched all day and night for him. If he didn't survive that would be very sad indeed—for Wilbur.

A chilly rain beat down. Herbert didn't return to the canoe, and finally Wilbur pushed off and tried to paddle it, but he couldn't manage very well, so he drifted down through the lake, down a stream and into another lake, and finally curled up, sodden with chill rain, in the canoe.

Through a third narrow lake the canoe drifted with the current and two women, in a camp, saw the apparently empty canoe and went out after it.

Between them they got Wilbur into bed. The girl and her mother worked over him. All night they worked and with hot baths and stimulants they pulled him through.

It was noon the next day when Wilbur sat up and looked around. There were bright blankets and white birch furniture, a big fireplace and everything cheerful.

"Why, it's Julie!" Wilbur cried.

And so it was. Julie had taken her ailing mother into the Canadian woods, selling her cigar stand concession to be able to afford it.

Otis and son searched for five days and sent for guides and searched. Finally they found Wilbur. He was out in a canoe with Julie—he was already tanned and feeling fine.

Uncle Ben and Cousin Herbert told how they were grateful—they would pay Miss Ranlett for her care of Wilbur.

Wilbur said, "I'm staying here with Julie and her mother."

"We won't allow it," Uncle Ben said.

Wilbur said, "How do you get that way?"

"We have to watch you, take care of you, Wilbur," Cousin Herbert said.

"Julie and her mother are going to do that. There's a minister coming up tomorrow to marry us. You may stay for the wedding," Wilbur explained.

Julie, Mrs. Wilbur Sargent, is watching Wilbur now—watching him grow strong and husky while both of them watch workmen put up a wonderful new camp on the thousand acres he bought up there.

ROMANCE

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

The seizing of the furniture at the Lorrain Hotel and the flight of the landlady left the cook and the waitress without a roof over their heads. They told Sheriff Noble that they wanted to get married, but were both broke.

The sheriff accompanied the pair to Judge Fink's residence. The judge was helping wash dishes. He rolled down his sleeves and told the pair to join hands.

He had them married before one could say Jack Robinson. The bride and the groom had their belonging done up in two little packs. Each shouldering one of these, they started out on the south highway afoot.

Betrayal of Authority Demands Investigation

Council should be interested in the Sun-Telegraph's exposure, Sunday, that fireworks permits are granted by Republican ward chairmen. It is about as brazen a betrayal of authority as has come to public attention. It is carrying to the limit Mayor Kline's policy, "to the victor belong the spoils."

A North Side storekeeper went to the City-County Building to apply for a license to sell fireworks, and was referred by officials employed to handle such matters to his ward chairman. Moreover, it was hinted, when the applicant admitted he had not supported the city administration's candidates in recent elections, that that might have some bearing on the chairman's attitude towards the application.

The incident is a flagrant example of the extremes to which gang politicians will proceed in their seizure of autocratic power if not checked by public indignation.

Will Pittsburgh tolerate this abuse? If it does, it may become necessary to get the chairman's O. K. before an application for a dog license is granted.

Citizens look to Council for relief. If that body does its duty it will conduct an inquiry into this matter, summon witnesses and establish definitely the responsibility for the outrageous situation.

Moreover, Council, if sensible of its obligations, will proceed at once to amend the fireworks ordinance. The lives of children are involved. A tragedy may be the penalty for delay.

Hot Weather Shows Need Of County Aquatic Park

With summer now officially here, and with swimming and boating among the most popular of Sunday and holiday pastimes, the time is opportune to do something to advance the Chamber of Commerce project for a county aquatic park in the Squaw Run valley at the point where the run flows into the Allegheny River.

Another good reason for giving the subject attention now is that the rivers and harbors bill in Congress carries an appropriation for improvement of the Allegheny, and one of the proposed improvements is a new dam at Aspinwall which would back up the water for 17 miles and form an admirable pool for boating. Pittsburgh should prepare to avail itself of this prospective opportunity for river recreation.

River improvement is in the air. Plans are under way to improve the streams for commercial purposes and to improve their appearance. The establishment of recreation facilities on the waterways would fit in well with this program.

The Squaw Run park project embodies the careful thought of competent authorities. It is difficult to see how it could be improved. It provides an attractive place where aquatic sports may be enjoyed by tens of thousands of persons at one time amid safe and sanitary surroundings.

It is estimated that the whole project could be carried through for about $1,300,000, a sum not excessive for a rich county like Allegheny.

Such a park is needed. The City Planning Commission and a number of the civic bodies have indorsed the scheme. It is to be hoped the County Commissioners will give it their prompt attention.

Blessed Event Connects Lindberghs and World

How did they all just come to be you?
God thought about me and so I grew.

Where did you come from, baby dear?
Out of everywhere into here.
—George Macdonald.

Since everybody was interested in the anticipated blessed event that eventually was to come into the lives of Col. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh, one assumes that everybody vicariously shares the happiness of the parents of the infant whose arrival in the world caused as much commotion as that of any prince in history. Mothers throughout the land, no doubt, send a spiritual wave of caresses to the young woman knowing the happiness of maternity for the first time. Fathers admit to their circle, with honor of full membership that goes only to the parent of a first-born son, the man who startled the world by flying across the Atlantic alone. That, of course, was some feat—but now he is a father.

Cynics may smile, but the glory and marvel of the mystery of life as exemplified in the coming into existence of another human being—just the commonplace arrival of a baby—remains the supreme joy of existence. We always have likened this natural phenomenon to the dropping of a pure jewel from heaven and we always shall. Since Lindy made himself so prominent that he could not regain that obscurity from whence he emerged, even when he might desire to do so, his child's birth was bound to be an event of public interest. We all have a maternal and paternal interest in it.

So, good luck to the Lindberghs—the three of them!

Florists' Grievance

The City Should Not Trespass On Private Business.

If, as florists have charged in a letter to Council, the city has been furnishing free flowers from the municipal greenhouses and parks to fraternal and other organizations for festive occasions, the protest is justified and the practice should cease.

It is bad enough for a city or state government to sell its products in competition with private commercial concerns; but to give them away, except, of course, in some grave emergency, is much worse. Furthermore, in the bestowal of the floral offerings there is bound to be partiality, and organizations which fail to receive flowers will have reason to feel aggrieved.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

No Room--Private Bath

Nobody in the West can visualize the magnificent sight of 1,000,000 people in bathing at the same time.

"Bugs" Baer

Yet it happens every Sunday at Coney Island where the Frankfurter lurks in the festive roll and purrs contentedly when stroked with soothing liniment of mustard.

When a westerner bathes in July and August he gets a barrel of water by parcel post and pours it into the river. Then he jumps into the river and sprains both ankles on the drought.

We don't claim to have seen the gallant Los Angeles River in August because nobody has ever seen the Los Angeles River in August.

The same with famous San Antonio River and the other rivers of the Far West. The sun is so generous and the land so thirsty that even the frogs get chapped lips in the late summer.

But down at Coney Island there is plenty of ocean. Still, when 1,000,000 people decide to bathe at the same time a lifesaver becomes a traffic cop.

It is rather dangerous because if the guy in the middle cannot swim they are all liable to get cramps.

The lifeguards are very polite and often remark: "No crowding please. Another wave will be along in a minute."

It requires much stamina and persistence to get your elbows wet. And you must be alert to prevent a stranger from drowning in your lap.

This is one of the most amazing sights in the world and the only place where a boat can run aground on a reef of shoulder-blades.

The ants are deserting the mountains and going down to the shore for the basket party season.

A million people means a quarter-million picnic lunches, the same number of thermos bottles and a world debt in pickles and chow-chow.

Swimming is more or less impossible in that congestion. The best you can do is to slap the water with your hands like a walrus.

That may seem like a lot of people but remember that a man by the name of Robinson Crusoe once had a beach to himself and let out an awful squawk.

It is the same sand, the same ocean and the same sun that society uses at Palm Beach in the winter. And we bet that Tommy Lipton gets no more fun out of his yacht than a Coney Islander does out of his punctured waterwings.

Not that waterwings are any good for floating, but they make nice bumpers when a stampede starts.

JOSEPH PRIESTLEY

By Archibald Henderson

America will always take a deep interest in the life and scientific achievements of Joseph Priestley. It is said that Benjamin Franklin started Priestley, a Dissenting minister of advanced opinions, upon his scientific career.

In 1795 Priestley followed to America his sons, who had recently emigrated thither. In Northumberland, Pennsylvania, he built an excellent house, three stories in height, with two wings—one a laboratory, the other a kitchen. It stands today virtually unchanged and in 1919 became the property of Pennsylvania State College, through the gift of George Gilbert Pond, then dean of the college.

A fireproof museum, built on the lawn of the Priestley homestead, houses all the books and apparatus which could be collected belonging to Priestley. This Priestley property is now vested in a board of trustees consisting of appointees of the Pennsylvania State College, the American Chemical Society, the American Philosophical Society, and the Pennsylvania Historical Society.

Joseph Priestley repaid the debt to America, through Franklin's influence, by exerting an important influence in turn upon American science. In 1874 a small group of American chemists gathered at the Priestley homestead to commemorate, through appropriate memorial exercises, the one hundredth anniversary of the discovery of oxygen. It is a noteworthy fact that, as the result of correspondence following this meeting, the American Chemical Society was founded. Its first meeting was held on April 6, 1876.

The museum, which serves as a repository for Priestley's library and apparatus, was appropriately dedicated on September 5, 1926. Some 200 chemists from all over the world assembled at Northumberland; and upwards of 40 descendants of Priestley were likewise present. It was a simple but memorable tribute to the discoverer of oxygen, whose name is permanently inscribed in the history of science.

Joseph Priestly was born at Fieldhead, near Leeds, England, on March 13, 1733. The son of a woolen-cloth-dresser, he attended the Nonconformist Academy at Daventry, after going through a course of study at a grammar school. About 1755 he became a Dissenting minister and preached at various churches until 1791. In 1762 he was married to Anne, the daughter of Isaac Wilkinson, a Wrexham ironmaster.

Priestly was a prolific writer, being the author of various religious and scientific works. Early in his career he attended chemistry lectures at various colleges and carried on scientific experiments in his own home. As a result of his scientific work he was honored with election as a Fellow of the Royal Society of England in 1766, and four years later as a foreign associate of the French Academy of Sciences.

There is much of simple eloquence in Priestley's description of the discovery of oxygen, in the treatise published in 177[illegible], entitled "From Experiments and Observations on Different Kinds of Air." He obtained the "air," or oxygen gas, by means of a lens, from oxide of mercury; and found that a mouse, on breathing the gas, became very lively. He records that on breathing the gas, he felt a strong exhilaration. He predicted the melting of platina by this gas, its salutary treatment for the lungs, and gave warning of the danger of its use by healthy people.

It is noteworthy, says Pauline G Beery, in "Stuff," that every possible use of oxygen which Priestly mentioned in his first paper has since become common.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

Lots of women don't like baseball. Some of 'em won't go to the games, and some of 'em will go to please their menfolks. And then some of 'em's like Mrs. Holmes. She didn't want to go, but her husband dragged her out, telling her that anybody with any sense at all couldn't help but enjoy a baseball game.

So, when they come home, Mrs. Holmes' sister says, "Did you enjoy it, Goldie?"

"Oh, sure! I never thought it would be so nice. I saw Mrs. Sharp there with a man that ain't her husband, and I'm pretty sure he's her husband's partner in business, and I saw Mrs. Alles there with a new pink dress that she was trying to show off, and there ain't anything wrong with her, the way she yelled, although she's always spending money on doctors, and that Miss Roberts that teaches your little girl at school, she was there in a dress that the board of education would never approve of for teachers if I know the board. Yes, I think I'll go to the games often. They are awful exciting."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Keep your eye on India. Amazing things are coming off there—for India has gone meek!

Remember that Beatitude, you learned in Sunday School—"THE MEEK SHALL INHERIT THE EARTH?" You never could quite swallow that, could you? In your sacrilegious young heart you believed it was all hooey. Meekies were 'fraid cats. How could they do anything? But they are doing plenty, over in Bombay, and their gentleness is making dynamite look like thirty cents.

For the first time in history, a nation has run amuck and is getting results by HOLDING ITS TEMPER. You know the story, of course. The British want to run India. The Indian Nationalists want to run themselves. In the past there have been bloody riots which availed nothing. Now, under Mahatma Ghandi, the Indians are trying a new technique—RESISTANCE WITHOUT VIOLENCE.

Sounds about as formidable as a marshmallow barrage, doesn't it? And the British at first thought it a joke. They don't think it a joke now. How can you fight hundreds of thousands of determined people who refuse to fight back—who lie down if kicked, die quietly if shot, sing songs if arrested—but somehow come on and on? Which is exactly what the Nationalists are now doing. Like a vast, meek fog they roll over laws and customs and forbidden areas, engulfing the British in their tremendous, terrifying tranquillity—while those gentlemen make furious, futile passes at something that isn't and won't.

A very mysterious and amazing business—meekness.

So easy to call a meek person a coward—but did you ever get into a serious mix with one of them? You'd be surprised! To all your threats and attacks, he will turn first one unresisting cheek and then another and you believe, in the hot joy of your blood lust, that you're burning him up. But after the smoke has cleared away, YOU are the really damaged party. Your energy is dissipated. Your dignity is in the dust. And you feel like a dose of hives. But your opponent stands there cool and unruffled, with his original energy and purpose intact.

"The meek shall inherit the earth"—that's why. The rest of us waste ourselves in making passes. But the weak man doesn't waste himself—nor allow himself to be diverted from his original purposes. He keeps his neck cool and his eye on his goal—while you're hitting wild all over the place.

Yes, without a doubt this "turn the other cheek" philosophy is the trickiest technique on earth. But just try and do it. Particularly if your grandpa's name was Pat!

Write your problems to Elsie Robinson and she will be glad to give a personal reply. Address communications to Miss Robinson in care of this newspaper.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Fishing Boats

The fishing boats are happy things
As with the dawn of day,
Although the trade-wind sharply stings,
They dance along the bay.

When watchers see it cross the bar,
The eager fishing fleet,
So small against the sea, so far,
Seems fated for defeat.

But, proud and joyous, on they ride
When dawn is in the sky,
The boats that play with wind and tide,
Like gulls careening by.

Life would be free, life would be sweet,
If squandered dreaming here
With sun and sea and fishing fleet
To fill the joyous year.

I love each mighty ship that floats,
Each keel that breasts the wave;
But best I love the fishing boats,
So little and so brave!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

If the reader has any doubt of this reasoning let him take a pack of ordinary cards, shuffle it and spread it face downwards over a table. Let him draw the cards at random in pairs. He may happen to draw a red and a red, or a red and black, or a black and a red, or a black and a black.

The chances of these various combinations are equal. So, in the long run, he will get about twice as many mixed pairs as double reds or double blacks.

H. G. Wells

We are dealing, be it remembered, with chance, and the result is never perfectly exact. We say "in the long run." But chance is a fickle jade, and often the run is uncommonly long before the mathematical rectification is achieved.

The first two or three pairs to be turned up may happen to be pure red or pure black, but as the experiment is continued the proportions will tend to straighten out as we have prophesied.

The more pairs one turns up, the more closely will the proportions obtained approximate to those we have deduced.

So with numerical experiments in heredity. If one wants reliable results one has to work with large numbers of individuals.

In the case of the Four-o'clock, if one were to take a half-a-dozen seeds from a pink plant and rear them, anything might happen. They might even all be red (although the odds against that are about four thousand to one).

But if one rears large numbers of the hybrid generation—fields of it—the proportions straighten out and assume the estimated values within a striking degree of accuracy.

How close actuality may be to expectation when really large numbers are bred is shown by the following example. Mendel and six subsequent investigators have all counted the second generation from crosses between yellow and green color in peas.

Their actual figures, totalled together are: Yellow, 152,824; green, 50,676. The theoretical expectations with this number of plants are: Yellow, 152,625; green, 50,875. The actual ratio is 3.01 to 1, instead of 3 to 1—a divergence of about one-third of one per cent.

Using similar methods one can anticipate the results of other Mendelian crosses, and then confirm them experimentally.

Thus the second hybrid generation of the waltzing mouse cross will give three times as many normals as waltzers.

In the second generation of the peas cross there will be nine tall plants with yellow seeds, three short with yellow seeds, and three tall with green seeds to every one that is short with green seeds. And here again the phophecies can be confirmed with a high degree of accuracy.

Sometimes these calculations are upset. In some cases the mobility of the pollen-tubes is affected by the genes they carry, so that one kind is at a disadvantage, reaching the ovules too late, the ratio is altered.

Or one variety may be more delicate and have a higher mortality than another; we shall see in the following section how sometimes genes may kill their bearers. Sometimes there is a hitch in the delicate chromosome mechanism; for example, two chromosomes may stick together during the reduction division and one of them may get pulled into the wrong gamete with strange and unexpected results.

But these are exceptions. In the vast majority of cases, whenever sufficiently large numbers of animals or plants are reared, Mendel's Laws have ample practical confirmation.

ON THE ATLANTIC

By O. O. McIntyre

ON THE ATLANTIC, June 24.—Along with the notables, this ship has a sprinkling of the notorious. Twice while swaying through companion ways I have suddenly looked up in the bulging eyes of Harry K. Thaw, who, with his omnipresent bodyguard, seems to be all over the boat.

He darts here and there like the quick rush of a fullback, stops quickly and indulges in his turkey gobbler talk. There are many who do not care to be on the same ocean with the Pittsburgh eccentric, let alone the same liner. However, he seems so far well mannered and quite inoffensive.

Among passengers, too, is the internationally celebrated and orchidaceous lady whom I vowed not to mention in these columns for some time to come. If she marries the captain in the middle of the ocean it will make a sucker of me again. But, as some comic has said, that is life!

Edna Ferber is aboard, and at lunch today I sent a note to her table reading: "Dear Miss Hurst: I am one of your admirers, having read your 'Lummox' twice." She smiled and waved and I may become the life of the ocean party yet, what with my joking and carrying on that way. I'm a case at sea.

Incidentally, I counted seven copies of Miss Ferber's "Cimarron" among book-reading voyagers today. Charlie Murray, the movie comedian, is making his first trip abroad with his wife, daughter and son-in-law. At the age when most performers are through, he is at the top of the heap and going strong.

Adele Astaire, dancer, is a deck-tripper, as are Henry and Ann Bell, Mortimer Schiff, Ray Goetz and quite a large assortment of Mr. and Mrs. Goldbergs. There are also three gentlemen in an alcoholic haze who amuse me vastly. They march prison fashion to the bar every fifteen minutes singing the Maine Stein Song.

Passengers have settled down to ship routine. We all fall naturally into leisurely dressing, petit dejeuner and joining those siestaed in reclining chairs or walking the vibrating deck. They asked me among others to auction the pool today, but I passed the buck to Charlie Murray, who is still in hiding.

I am waiting to get back to my laughing room at home to explode over the fellow clod-hopper who snapped his fingers at a mincing figure in Chinese costume and demanded a match. She happens to be the wife of a Chinese diplomat and he thought she was just another of the boat's uniformed servants.

* * *

There is to me always something vague, alluring and mysterious in watching the sea shimmer in the moonlight from a promenade deck. Here and there the restless waves are fluted with a spray of phosphorescent green. Overhead puffs of white cloud float lazily between stars. Far away is the nebulous outline of a tramp, bound for God knows where. One looks out at the vast expanse and somehow feels at grips with the unknowable—a cliched observation, but it is that feeling that is the true miracle of the sea.

The lady—whose-name-I-hope-not-to-mention drifted imperiously into the bar at cocktail time this evening. She was in pastel blue that matched the delicate cornflower blue of her eyes. Her only jewel was a diamond the size of a postage stamp on a finger of the right hand. She sipped at a green mint which somehow strikingly blended with the ensemble. Her gaze had the studied indifference of the actress who knows she is being admired. She is a gorgeously beautiful creature in her upholstered, slinking way, and if she keeps on dazzling us I might mention her initials yet.

My objection to these fast-stepping boats on the Atlantic run is they wear you out with entertainment. It is a gallop from gangplank to gangplank. The expert voyager does not even engage deck chair space. He wants only a promenade and his cabin.

A gentleman—his name will also be spiked here—is listed in the passenger list as Soandso "with personal physician, valet and masseur." On my next trip I'm going as "O. O. McIntyre, with flying trapezist and deaf dog with fleas."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You may have prospered to a greater degree than any of your friends.

When you entertain you feel embarrassed because you realize that these friends cannot dress or do other things on the same scale as your newer friends.

You have about made up your mind not to invite them to your affairs because you think it may cause them to go beyond their means to keep up appearances.

Your position is rather puzzling, but don't you think your old friends would be hurt if you did not invite them?

You may choose to consider that you have done them a favor in not including their names on your invitations, but that sort of thoughtfulness is not appreciated.

Those who are wise will decline your invitation if they feel that conditions put them out of the class you will invite—the newly-acquired, so-called friends.

Some will not want to embarrass you; others feel too much pride of themselves to appear at a formal gathering in informal or shabby attire.

You might have social affairs where you especially entertain the friends who composed the circle in which you until recently moved.

All of them would probably enjoy themselves more if surrounded by those in their own circumstances, but you need tactful forethought not to offend.
